*Way down South in Mississippi,
there's a spot that ever calls,
Where among the hills enfolded,
stand old Alma Mater's halls,*

*Where the trees lift high their branches to the whispering Southern breeze
There Ole Miss is calling, calling to our hearts fond memories.*

There is no solid distinction between The University and Ole Miss even though the separate threads are closely interwoven.

The University is buildings, trees and people. Ole Miss is mood, emotion and personality. One is physical, and the other is spiritual. One is tangible, and the other intangible.

-ROBERT JORDAN

The University is respected, but Ole Miss is loved. The University gives a diploma and regretfully terminates tenure, but one never graduates from Ole Miss.

Tuck's tour followed her noon address at a day-long seminar on elder law held on Oxford campus and sponsored by the North Mississippi Rural Legal Services. She said the state must spend more on assistance to the elderly. Tuck urged Mississippi to take greater advantage of available federal funds from Medicare and called on the legislature to consider using money from the tobacco trust settlement.

"The University of Mississippi is an institution recognized for its development of leaders in all segments of society. At Ole Miss, the challenges in the classroom and the opportunities afforded outside class broaden horizons and enhance opportunities. “Ole Miss is unique among American universities. As a laboratory for leaders with a strong foundation in the humanities, sciences, and arts, our students are provided extraordinary educational opportunities. Strong academic programs, a beautiful and safe campus, gifted students, faculty, staff, and loyal graduates have enabled us to gain recognition as one of America’s great public universities.”

The University's nickname OLE MISS

became a part of the University over 100 years ago, in 1896, when it was selected in a contest held to identify a new student publication, the yearbook. It was suggested by the late Miss Elma Meek of Oxford. Each succeeding copy of the annual has been given this copyrighted identity. The name gradually became synonymous with the University and is now a treasured segment of University history.

-JOE ELLIS

“When I think of Ole Miss, I usually think about the Circle in front of the Lyceum, lighted on a cool fall night. I am reminded of all those who have worked to make this the unique place that it is. I think about the work, hope, tears, joys, failures, and triumphs that have combined to make this simple spot one of the most special on earth.”

Faces in the Grove

An Ole Miss Tradition

The memories loom among the rustling branches. There's an undying breeze.

A squirrel could make its way across the sidewalk any minute now, and at least some shred of a memory would come back; a story to be told. The Grove is in many ways the heart of campus, drawing people from all over the country by its fame. This place consistently remains diverse in color, from the months of evergreen to the misty dew of wintery days. But even the bleakness of a rainy day will not stray those from its path. It's not just about Saturday football games, musical events or afternoon picnics.

There's a speciality about it that runs much deeper in each and every one of us. It's the tradition that is Ole Miss; that sits beneath the sky; beneath the clouds. The home of millions of moments, nostalgia drifting overhead through the air; one can almost smell it. The Grove not only symbolizes the beauty that lives on the Ole Miss campus; it is the tradition that will endure forever. It calls to us ever presently, and when we return we remember...

Living On Campus

There's always room for improvement.

Campus housing is no exception to the rule.

"What we're striving for..."

are noticeable improvements in facilities, staff, customer service, in community development and lastly, academic support services," said Director of Student Housing Bill McCartney. "Everything we do should be aimed at how we get better in providing services for students."

The 2000-2001 school year brought a number of changes to campus housing activities and procedures. For starters, there is no longer housing on campus reserved strictly for freshmen. Both freshmen and upperclassmen occupy the dormitories, excluding Guess Hall, which is restricted by gender and age. (A student must be at least 21 to live in Guess.) The Residence Hall Association voted in favor of this change last year. "We believe students should be able to choose to live where they would like to,"

McCartney said. Kristen LaBan, a sophomore vocal education major from Madison, thinks the change is not beneficial. "When freshmen come to Ole Miss, they should go through the first year experience living together," said LaBan. "They need to go through the change of being away from home and learning responsibilities, something that upperclassmen have already experienced." Other changes for the year include the elimination of all halogen lights in dorms for safety precautions, and as of August 1, 2000, this is the first year that all residence halls are smoke-free. "Dinner with 6 Strangers" was another big addition for campus residents this year. Campus residents can come by Student Housing and sign up to have dinner in the home of a faculty, or staff, member who has volunteered to be a part of the event.

"We wanted to find ways to connect students and faculty," McCartney said.

"It allows faculty to see students differently." Among the changes taking place this year, the housing department also submitted a proposal to have the University accepted into the National Student Exchange Program, which will allow students to attend 160 other colleges and universities across the United States, and at no additional cost. Student Housing is the house office and responsible for student recruitment.

I would say that I came to Ole Miss in a rather unexpected manner. I was in Ecuador when I assisted in a short course on Geographic Information Systems in August 1997. There is where I met Dr. Greg Easson, my current advisor. I did not know what Ole Miss was back then, but I kept in touch with Dr. Easson and after almost a year, I was traveling to the US. I was finally accepted in Spring 1999 and was ready to start this journey in an American university. There are a lot of things I like about Ole Miss, such as the campus, because it is small enough where almost everybody knows each other. I also like the friendliness that most people demonstrate--a part of southern culture that I have started to appreciate. Ole Miss is different from the campuses in my country because of the size and the number of cars around. I would prefer students riding bikes. The most interesting thing was the football season. I saw probably hundreds of people in the stadium cheering for the Ole Miss Rebels. I expect to graduate in May 2001.

I chose Ole Miss because I was offered a scholarship as a transfer student. It was somewhat a cultural shock when I came here, even though I lived in Kansas for four years prior to my arrival. Although I do not like small towns, I will take with me many good memories from Oxford. The friendly people, that traditional southern environment, and the friends that I've made here. Cheerleading is probably the single activity that I had the most fun doing. It is something that I'll always remember from college.

What can I say about France? From the bountiful dog poop on the streets and the break-your-teeth hard baguettes to the coziness of a sidewalk cafe and "la vie en rose"...it was quite a trip. I studied in Rennes, a rainy city in northwestern France. I made memorable friends from all over the world, traveled and learned a lot.

I came to Ole Miss as a tennis player from University in Miami, and the program at Ole Miss is one of the top in the Nation. I wanted to improve my game, and compete in the SEC. What I like about Ole Miss is the campus, the people (especially those who support Ole Miss athletic events), the professors, and the small town. The food was very different at the beginning; I was used to cooking my own food in Miami or eating in Latino restaurants.

EMILY CASTILLO

I came to Ole Miss because I was offered a scholarship. I enjoy my times sitting out in the Grove and, well... let's not leave out the tailgating adventures during the fall. The main difference between Ole Miss and my country are the way people act and also their definition of partying. We enjoy a good place to dance and be with friends and family. At Ole Miss, partying refers to "getting plastered". The Croft Institute has been something Ole Miss should be very proud of. I'm proud to say that through them, many Ole Miss students have and will continue to learn about various international cultures and realize that there is a world out there besides the States.

IRA EUGENE GADDY IV
PRE-MED
GULFPORT, MISSISSIPPI

Of my eight semesters of college, the one I spent in Tilburg, Holland is incomparably the best. I didn't learn as much in class and didn't see one football game, yet I learned more in six months of European life than years in the States. Study Abroad should be a requirement. You get bombarded for months with an entirely new perspective on life and realize that much of it fits you better than what is offered at home. Having to choose new friends, make travel plans with no influences, and being in a place where no one cares what you do allows you to figure out what kind of life you want to live. I met my fiancé in Europe. I walked around places I'd only read about and felt more at home than any other time in my life. Coming back to the States was a culture shock. I decided not to go to medical school and plan to go to writing school next year. I think that if I hadn't gotten away from all the people who influence me, I wouldn't have made the decision. Studying abroad saved me from a later crisis by helping me figure out who I really am.

BRIAN ROSENKRANS

October 9, 2000

Dear Mom and Dad,

How are things back home? I'm missing you so much, but Ole Miss is so beautiful, and I'm loving it here more and more every day. The weather's getting much colder up here, and I'm having to pull out the sweaters and gloves. The wind is so strong; sometimes I feel like I'm going to be blown away. I'm definitely not used to that yet at all. The scenery is so beautiful up here, and the leaves are starting to turn colors already. Sometimes there's the occasional thunderstorm that lasts for a week, but other than that, it's always nice outside.

Home is on my mind constantly, but classes keep me preoccupied, and in spite of all the studying, I'm having no trouble at all getting involved on campus. There are so many activities and organizations to be apart of, and I'm meeting tons of people. With everything going on, there isn't a lot of time left over for sleep. The dorm stays pretty loud at night, making it impossible to get any shut-eye before midnight, but I wouldn't take back the experience so far. I've made so many friends on the hall. The college experience is pretty exciting! You've got to come up for a game one weekend, but count on having to reserve a hotel room about a year in advance. It's impossible if you wait too long.

On game days the Grove is packed with tailgaters, and you really can't see from one end of the Grove to the other. There are hordes of people and tents everywhere with all kinds of food to munch on; not too good for a healthy diet. The girls here dress up for all of the games like they are making an appearance at a movie premiere in New York or something. I've never seen so much black leather and animal print in my life. Everywhere you turn there's another designer handbag, or zebra-print skirt. I miss getting to just throw on a sweat shirt and jeans to head out to a game, but those days are pretty much over here, unless I don't mind being the center of some negative attention. The guys show up all spiffy in their suits with red and blue ties, and they've definitely got the whole shaggy mop top thing going on. I've never seen guys with so much hair on their head. I'm still trying to get use to it, and I continue to scope out the guys around campus looking for boyfriend material (hee hee). It's definitely not like I thought it would be. For some reason, I imagined that college meant you automatically met somebody and started dating, but it's a slower process than I counted on.

Classes have been strenuous at times, and I've discovered, after months of being warned, that if you don't keep up with the reading, it's pretty easy to fall behind. Don't worry, I haven't missed a class yet; still going strong. But I am surprised at how many kids actually don't show up for class, especially on Fridays. According to most people here, Thursday nights are the official start of the weekend. Last week everyone I know on the hall went out to some clubs in town. The Library, (not the one with all of the books), seems to be a popular spot. The Gin, too, but I have a feeling that's mainly a big freshmen hangout. That's all most of the girls ever talk about. Tons of pretty well-known local bands play around town all the time, and even on campus, so this place is a fairly big music scene for little ol' Oxford. We have Grove concerts all the time, and trust me when I say there's never a boring moment here. I continue to count down the days til Thanksgiving. I can't wait to see you all again! It's just not the same without my family close by, but I've adjusted well. I didn't realize, though, how hard it would be to go ten hours away from everything and everyone I ever knew. However, everyday I'm more and more certain that this is the place I'm suppose to be. These past couple of months have proven to me how fated it was that I found Ole Miss and made it my new home. I can't imagine anything better. Until we meet again,

XOXOXO!!!

Hotty Toddy,

Kathleen Hillman

Navigating the Crowd

Whether you are walking around construction sites or searching for a place to park, getting around at Ole Miss can sometimes be difficult. Enrollment is the highest it has ever been, and the University continues to receive millions for new buildings or special projects.

That means more construction is taking place while more students are on campus trying to get to class on time. Some students ride bicycles or motorcycles to class, but most people walk. Walking can be dangerous as illustrated by the fact that three pedestrians were hit by cars last year. The University has since lowered the speed limit to 18 mph. Parking seems to have always been a problem, and the number of tickets being given indicate the problem is getting worse. During the '99-'00 school year, a total of 75,464 tickets were written by the University Police Department. That is more than 8 tickets for every undergraduate at Ole Miss.

The total amount of money collected from the tickets was $1,136,767.00, and a majority of this money goes into the University's general scholarship fund. The selling of decals to faculty, staff, and students generated $424,255 in '99-'00. Most of this money went to the Physical Plant who builds parking spaces, puts up signs, paints crosswalks, etc. The Physical Plant has been constructing parking spaces behind the Turner Center, and a parking area next to the Depot, and the New Fine Arts Center will hopefully be completed by the first of the year. Parking tickets went up this year to $10 for the first offense, $20 for the second, and $40 for the third. The parking and traffic committee composed of faculty, staff, students, and representatives from UPD are the ones who decided to raise the cost of tickets.

In their five years together, the band has gained a strong foothold on the Southeast, filling several prominent music venues and is beginning to spread their talent to the rest of the nation. They have shared the stage with the likes of Widespread Panic, Leftover Salmon, Jimmie Dale Gilmore, Junior Brown, and Col. Bruce Hampton with Aquarium Rescue Unit, just to name a few. Their debut CD was recorded with Grammy Award winning producer Jim Gaines at the helm. So far, Kudzu Kings have sold over 9,000 units without the benefit of national distribution and received considerable radio play.

BLEND OF FUNK & METAL
OXFORD, MISSISSIPPI

In February of the year 2000, Danny Henning, Charlie Dawson, and Brian Walker formed the intergalactic metal protected soul band, Swole. Swole's variety is partly due to the multi-talented members switching instruments between songs, but mostly attributed to their sheer emotional roller-coasting between soft and heavy styles of soundscapes. Swole energizes the crowd with its electric blend of funk, metal, and exchanges which ensure as much variety in the crowd as in the band.

Let it SNOW!

At 7:34 p.m. on January 27, 2000, the Ole Miss campus was slowly transformed into one giant winter wonderland. The first campus snow of 2000 sent hearts jumping and students racing for the doors. No one was left unaware of the frosty flakes as dorm residents were heard screaming, "It's snowing, it's snowing." For some it was the sigh of relief, "No class tomorrow." For others, it was the beginning of a very long and cold weekend. As residents grabbed their coats and hats, they made their way outside the halls to experience the thrill of the new-fallen snow. Students were the culprits of countless snowball fights, and stayed up until early morning sliding down the snow-covered hills behind Deaton and Stewart Hall. All different ages and genders revisited their childhood and enjoyed the snow while it lasted. Snowpeople and snow angels graced the campus, as students ran around disturbing the white perfection of the ground. As the snow began to melt on Saturday evening, students faced the realization that classes would continue on Monday, and the fun was coming to an end.

Rebel Ride 2000

Tickets for "Rebel Ride," the University's new trolley system, went on sale for $10 each in the area between the "Y" building and Union Plaza. The tickets sold from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for an entire week and were available to anyone interested, including students, faculty and Oxford residents. A ticket provided unlimited rides for three weeks, the pilot period for the project. The trolley system, which included two trolleys, ran Monday through Saturday from 2 p.m. until the early morning. One trolley ran a daytime route, while the other had an evening schedule. Both had professional drivers. The daytime trolley ran from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. in a northeast to southwest direction. It travelled in a 20 minute loop, including the outer loop of campus and the mall. The afternoon and evening schedule started at 6 p.m. and ended when everyone had been taken home. It also ran in 20 minute loops, except on Thursday through Saturday when it ran every 10 to 12 minutes. After the pilot period, project organizers gauged student interest to determine if Rebel Ride will become permanent, said Lew Yoder, a member of the student committee which developed the trolley idea. "If this works, we will see how the routes go, and then talk to students and do student surveys," Yoder said. If the trolley becomes permanent, semester passes will be available. A price for the passes has not been set.

Drinking & Getting Drunk Aren't the Same

Mike Green, the nationally known leader in the field of drug and alcohol education, stressed the difference in drinking and getting drunk Monday night when he spoke to Ole Miss students. Green began his speech standing behind a table covered with various kinds of alcoholic drinks and other soda drinks. He poured some of the alcoholic drink into a cup and showed it around to the students. He then asked the students questions about their drinking habits. He asked the students if they drank, and if they throw up from drinking. He received cheers from the crowd of students as a response each time. Green, a recovering alcoholic, started to point out the bad side effects of binge drinking. He said that one does not have to be an alcoholic to have an "alcohol problem." Green said getting drunk is a different thing from drinking. "Drinking is for entertainment and getting drunk is for escape," Green said. Getting drunk embarrasses you, your family, or makes somebody else look bad, Green said. "There is nothing to prove by how much you drink," Green said. "You can always say 'I have had enough to drink.'" Green said binge drinking is the real problem. It is not only a short time problem because it could have a life-time effect or result, he said. "In one night, you can lose everything," Green said. Green encouraged the students to look out for others who might be drinking too much. "I hope you would take care of your friends," Green said in his closing of the 50-minute speech. Some students realized how dangerous alcohol can be during Green's speech. "I realized that I need to watch out for my friends a lot more," said Lauren Spencer, a freshman from Little Rock, Ark. Other students were surprised with how interesting the speech was. "I found it more interesting than I expected," said Marie Harkins from Jackson. "I think he did a great job in getting his point across." Emily Gingham, a freshman from Biloxi, agreed with Harkins. "I think it is a really interesting subject which made me really eager to go and listen to the speaker although it is part of my requirements for the course (University Studies)," Gingham said. Freshman students were required to attend the speech as part of the University Studies course, US 101, which is one credit hour, and part of the core requirements. The event was sponsored by the University Counseling Center, A & B Distributing, and the University faculty, staff, and peer leaders.

Religion on Campus

growth and a closer religious walk have a wide range of ministries to participate in on campus. Ole Miss is home to a number of campus ministries, including Westminster Fellowship; the Muslim Student Association; Lutheran Student Fellowship; Chi Alpha; and Student Mobilization. That's only naming a few.

Campus Crusade for Christ (CCC), under the direction of Isaac Jenkins, is a large ministry made up of about 400 students. Students participate in various Bible studies during the week and worship service Tuesday nights in Farley auditorium. The Wesley Foundation is a ministry of the United Methodist Church. However, it ministers to all, regardless of denomination. Wesley members take part in Bible study sessions weekly, as well as semester retreats. The Baptist Student Union welcomes all students for fellowship and praise on Tuesday Nights Together (TNT). Fresh Start, a freshmen only Bible study, is another activity sponsored by the BSU each fall semester. While providing entertainment, the Gathering, a small drama group and Gift of Song, an ensemble consisting of 12 singers, send a message to students about their walk with God. Many campus athletes and other interested students participate in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, which "presents athletes and coaches, and all whom they influence, the challenge and adventure of receiving Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior," said FCA Director Wes Yeary. Each week about 150 participants gather for small group Bible study and various meetings, including prayer and discipleship. During the year, FCA members attend retreats to bring the group closer together. They participate in "Activity Night", a night of speakers, music, skits, games and testimonies, as well as "Team Night", in which FCA meetings are held at sports events on campus.

Friendspeak, a service to International students, is offered to help them perfect their knowledge of the English language and study the Bible. The 25 active participants work with UC volunteers an hour each week. This will be the first year that the Common Ground Association, formerly the Worldwide Church of God, will open its doors to Ole Miss students. The association is still seeking final approval from the University. Student Advisor Michael Lampley said the association exists to "provide a common ground between all denominations and stress Biblical interpretations from a non-denominational point of view."

Students currently attend Biblical interpretation classes at the main library weekly.

Construction

Construction on campus is BOOMING!

During the 1999–2000 academic year, the university spent about 76 million dollars on new construction and renovations on campus, and the projected cost for this year is close to the same. It is hard for students to walk to class without hearing the "beep, beep, beep" of a crane backing up, the sound of a diesel engine of a back hoe, or other noises that come from construction equipment. Pedestrians have to walk around boarded up or fenced off areas surrounding construction sites, and some parking spaces for cars have been taken away to make room for construction. The Lyceum renovation is the big project that just about everyone is conscious of since it is so centrally located and students have to pass by it on their way to class. The 10.5 million dollar renovation is projected to be complete in mid-December. There are many other renovations going on around campus.

The "Y" Building, Fulton Chapel, and the Turner Center are all undergoing renovations using money provided by the state. The Performing Arts Complex is a huge project with a budget of over 61 million dollars that came from private donations and the state. The project also includes building the Ford Campus Theater and renovating the gym in the education building for the band to use. Ole Miss is also getting a new chapel that is projected to be complete by December. The $3,758,889 chapel is being built entirely from private funds. The Circle had a makeover this year with the addition of wide sidewalks outlined by bricks. One anonymous person donated the money for the project that was started in July and completed in October. Two other construction projects about to start are the redbrick entrance gateway that will be visible as you enter the campus across from the education building and the south end zone enclosure at Vaught-Hemmingway Stadium. Ole Miss is definitely growing, and it has the construction to prove it.

The almost $4 million cost of the chapel and 50-foot bell tower is being covered completely by private funds.

Cell Phones

Take a look around the Ole Miss campus. It's almost guaranteed that a person talking on a cell phone will be in the line of vision. Cell phones have increased in popularity over the last few years because prices have gone down making them more affordable for everyone, especially students. The cell phone companies have found quite a market among college students for a number of reasons. College is a time in a young person's life when they stray further from home; in most cases more than parents have ever experienced. Their parents know they will be driving long distances by themselves so they find the need to supply their daughters and sons with a phone for emergencies. However, students look at cell phones as a tool to be used other than for emergencies. They find it to be one of their main means for communication with friends and family. Many companies come with calling plans that include statewide and even nationwide calling for a low flat fee and for a certain number of minutes. A very tempting addition to the plans is unlimited night and weekend calling. A growing concern with the use of cell phones is use while driving, which can cause distraction. There have been movements to pass legislation so that it is illegal to talk on one while driving. The laws governing use of phones are still in consideration, but the phone companies are ahead of the lawmakers with devices that make phones hands-free. Cell phones are a part of life for most people. The technology is so advanced now that phones can receive email and users can surf the Internet through their phones. Cell phones have become the ultimate accessory with every color and design of faceplates imaginable. The importance of such a small accompaniment to life has had one huge impact connecting people.

MONEY! MONEY!

"Visa- it's everywhere you want to be."

Including the not-so-marvelous land of debt. Most college students are very susceptible to the lure of plastic and the thrill of "not having to pay." Unfortunately, the bills must be paid sooner or later. College students are the most popular targets of credit providers, and their vulnerability is a weakness that proves to be lethal. A study done by Pennsylvania State University of three northeastern colleges showed that out of 1,022 students, 735 owned at least one credit card. The average number of cards owned by these students was 2.66, and the average monthly balance was $846. These numbers are staggering, and the problem is increasing. Each year, the number of students in debt grows. Students need to become more aware of the negative effects bad credit can have on their lives. Years of bad credit can seriously impair your life. Without good credit, it is nearly impossible to buy a car or a home. Before acquiring a credit card, students should take advantage of various resources offered by card issuers. The most reputable providers, such as Visa or MasterCard, have special information sections for students. By becoming more informed, we better our chances for a sunny credit forecast.

Besides the cost of actually attending college, students face the costs of going out at night and usually eating out once or twice a week. One could easily spend $50 or more on one night out.

-RYAN PIERINI

Numerous students take advantage of the free or low cost events which are on campus and around the Oxford area. For example, the Student Housing and Residence life department shows movies in the Turner Center Auditorium on selected Friday nights for $1. The Student Programming Board also provides great entertainment such as the numerous concerts and events in the Union plaza during Homecoming and Red & Blue Week. Other students may opt to find low cost activities outside of Oxford like visiting Graceland II in Holly Springs, Mississippi. Regardless, there is always something to do.

Above: Throughout Lafayette county, there were five voting districts. The National Armory was one of the three for district one. The polls opened at 7 a.m. and closed at 7 p.m. Around campus on Election day, there was little campaigning as both the College Democrats and Republicans had already helped voters register.

Presidential Election November 7, 2000

As President Clinton's administration came to an end, a new president was elected to begin a new century. Three major contenders were up for the seat of Chief Executive: Al Gore, current Vice President and Democrat Nominee; George W. Bush, current Governor of Texas, son of former President George Bush, and Republican Nominee; and Ralph Nader, of the Green Party.

The election was a big topic of conversation on the Ole Miss campus. It was also a major issue for the student organizations supporting each candidate including the College Democrats, College Republicans and The Ole Miss Green Party. Each organization worked hard to promote their candidates. The Democrats had a table set up in the Union since school began in support of Al Gore. They held numerous voter registration drives and provided information about absentee ballots. The College Republicans were influential in bringing U. S. Senator Trent Lott, a former Ole Miss cheerleader and alumnus, to campus in September. The Republicans also held a voter registration drive to get students registered as the deadline approached. The University Greens, which the Ole Miss Green Party is commonly referred to, was very active on campus in support of the election. They had a table set up inside and in front of the Union throughout the semester. One event hosted by the Greens that made news was the silent protest held while Senator Lott visited Ole Miss. About 12 members of the Greens participated in the protest.

All three groups hosted debates throughout the semester and all these student political organizations were active in their strive to get the attention of students turned to voting and supporting the candidate they felt would best represent the country as Commander in Chief.

the White House

THE FLORIDA RECOUNT

Bush vs. Gore

In the nation's first contested and most controversial presidential election, it will take the United States Supreme Court to determine which votes, cast by the American public, will decide who will win the battle for the White House.

As Americans stayed glued to their television sets and twiddled their thumbs, the question that continues to loom in everyone's mind is not just who will become the next President, but when will the controversy end? On Election night, even the networks couldn't determine who the next President would be, while America watched and waited. Early in the evening on November 7, 2000, networks began predicting that Vice President Al Gore won the state of Florida, later calling Texas Governor George W. Bush the winner. In the early hours of November 8, Bush was named the 43rd President Elect of the United States.

Gore, on his way to give his concession speech, received a phone call from an advisor telling Gore not to concede; that he might have won Florida after all.

Amazingly, one cell phone call started a chain of events that spiraled out of control and sent the nation into a state of uncertainty and chaos.

What followed were numerous nights of CNN election coverage. Passing from one millennium to the next, can the "greatest nation in the world" heal and unite behind this nation's first President of the 21st century?

November 8, 2000

Dear Mom and Dad,

As I look back over the last year, I can't believe how fast time has gone by since I started my freshmen year at Ole Miss. I remember thinking how out of place I felt and how everyone else on campus seemed so settled and sure of themselves. Now I realize how true those feelings really are for a majority of freshmen. Everything within my life drastically changed within a short period of time; I moved away from my hometown of Roswell, Georgia to the small, college town of Oxford, Mississippi, and that in itself was a culture shock.

Once I actually left for school (after totally buying out Bed, Bath & Beyond) and I moved into my new home-410 Martin, I was bombarded with a virtual stranger for a roommate, a new school, and changes in every aspect of my life. As the semester went on, I dove into classes and joined several campus organizations, and slowly I started recognizing more and more people on campus. Slowly we formed our circle of friends and started having all the stories and inside jokes that friends have. Between football game weekends, road-trips to Memphis, and days shopping on the Square, somehow I managed to survive the fall semester.

On the ride back from holiday break, I realized that I too had become another college student thinking that my school was the best. I adorned my car with University of Mississippi stickers and really started to enjoy the "college experience" for exactly that! I still don't have a major or any inkling to what career I want to have, but I have realized that some simply settle for the first option that comes along; however, I want to actually be passionate about whatever career path I chose.

Coming back to school this fall, I finally understood that the freshmen experience is simply that. This fall has been amazing; everywhere I go I see people I know and have started running into people that I knew back in the day. Every tradition that at first seemed so strange is now like second nature. When I look back over the friends that have come and gone over the last year, I appreciate those true friends that I have made and kept.

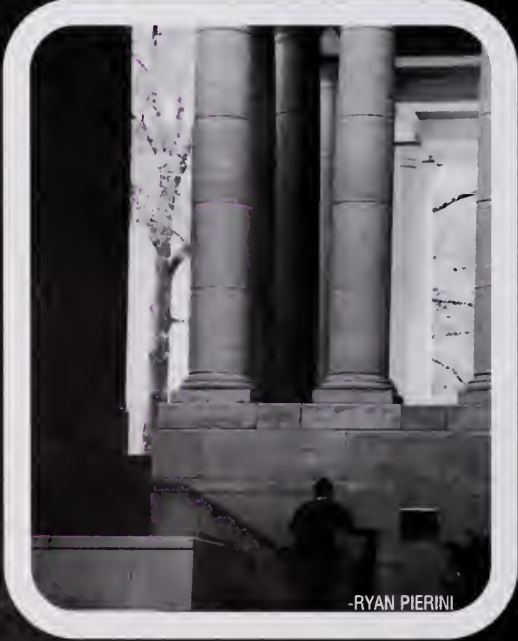

As this semester winds down and last minute studying is done, I have absolutely no regrets about coming to Ole Miss and in fact, I know that I changed for the better by being here. I read a quote from a fellow student referring to Oxford as "Disneyland for twenty-somethings" and I couldn't describe it any better.

XOXOXO!!!

CHANCELLOR

Robert Khayat

Dear Ole Miss Students,

This edition, our 106th of The Ole Miss reflects the remarkable vigor and excitement of the 2000-2001 academic year at The University of Mississippi. For students, faculty, staff, and alumni, this yearbook is a record of a memorable year filled with meaningful experiences across the spectrum of life in our unique community.

We have seen a renewed commitment to insuring that every student, faculty, and staff member has optimum opportunities to pursue his or her academic goals. Academic programs were strengthened, research funds made available, and laboratories, libraries, and lecture halls enhanced to reflect today's technology.

Ole Miss has long been recognized as fertile ground for Mississippi's leaders. Our graduates hold positions of leadership around the globe, and the opening of the Trent Lott Leadership Institute enabled us to enhance student leadership development opportunities.

With a commitment to providing a nurturing, safe campus, we have enhanced the natural beauty of our grounds and have created one of America's most attractive university communities.

The reputation of Ole Miss at Oxford as a haven for cultural activities was strengthened by the excitement surrounding the construction of the Gertrude Castellow Center for the Performing Arts. Our community and campus groups supported the performing, visual, and literary arts with exciting plays, art exhibits, thoughtful readings, and delightful concerts.

Students continue to pursue noble goals as they provide leadership in campus governance, philanthropy, print and broadcast journalism, athletics, and general goodwill in the community. We have embraced respect for others as a primary value of our community. . . a value reflected in this yearbook.

This 2000-2001 yearbook is a composite of the lives of our students, the dedication of our faculty, the support of our staff, and the loyalty of our alumni. Thank you for your contributions to the University and for a memorable year.

Ms. Tina Fife Webb

Tina Webb graduated Summa Cum Laude in 1992, with a Bachelor of Accountancy degree and in 1993, with a Master of Accountancy degree and an emphasis in taxation. She also received a Taylor Medal in accountancy. Webb is currently a Senior Manager in the tax department of KPMG LLP in Memphis, Tennessee as well as serving as a primary recruiter for the firm. During Webb's years at Ole Miss in the School of Accountancy, the professors showed an individual interest in each student, especially those who put forth their best effort to be successful. Webb obtained many technical skills from her years at Ole Miss. However, the knowledge she received from her experience at Ole Miss was far beyond the needed technical skills. From team projects, presentations, and the concern and encouragement of professors, she obtained the communications skills and confidence needed to be successful in public accounting.

Webb has the following to say about the Ole Miss School of Accountancy: "The School of Accountancy at the University of Mississippi is a program well equipped to prepare students for the work force. I have many thanks to give to the dedicated faculty in the School of Accountancy for the progress I have made in my career. Many of them are still in the program including the Dean of the Accountancy School, Dr. James W. Davis. The one professor I cannot thank enough at this point who deserves much recognition is Mr. H. School of Engineering

The Ole Miss School of Engineering was founded in 1900 and is the oldest engineering school in the state of Mississippi. The School of Engineering is also the third oldest school on the Ole Miss campus.

This year marked the eighth continuous year of growth with over 650 students. The School of Engineering is very pleased to have a job placement rate of 100 percent. Students base their success on the average class size of 10 students.

Also located in Carrier Hall is the Center for Computational Hydroscience and Engineering. Anderson Hall, which is connected to Carrier by a hallway, contains the departments of chemical engineering and electrical engineering. Electrical engineering also has research facilities in the old engineering building located next to Carrier and Anderson Halls. To the west of Carrier Hall is the old chemistry building, which houses the Mississippi Mineral Resource Institute and laboratories for geological engineering. School of Law

The University of Mississippi Law School is the fourth-oldest law school in the United States. The law school boasts leaders that work in all levels of law - locally, statewide and nationally. Just in the 20th Century, nine of Mississippi's governors, nearly one-third of the lieutenant governors, half of the Mississippi Supreme Court justices and nearly two-thirds of the presidents of the Mississippi Bar Association have been graduates of the Ole Miss School of Law. Currently both of the Mississippi senators, one of the five U.S. representatives, two 5th Circuit Court of Appeals judges, nine district court judges, the Lieutenant Governor, the state Attorney General, the state Treasurer and the Chancellor of the University are all graduates of the School of Law.

The Ole Miss Law School is nationally recognized with an enrollment of about 500 students, 26 full-time legal scholars and a library containing more than 270,000 volumes. The Law School is enabled to enrich its academic program by eleven endowed lecturers. Through these lecturers, the school is able to bring in jurists, scholars and educators to campus from all over the nation to share a wide variety of views about legal issues.

The traditional law program is among the most innovative in the country, incorporating lawyer skills, legal ethics and professionalism throughout the curriculum. The trial practice and advocacy programs give students valuable exposure to law practice. Small classes, a caring faculty and a diverse body of students make the University of Mississippi School Law outstanding.

School of Liberal Arts

On November 6, 1848, The University of Mississippi College of Liberal Arts, consisting of only four professors, opened its doors to students, marking the legacy of a diverse educational experience. Today, the tradition endures as the largest and oldest division of the University, which consists of nearly 30,000 graduates, and continues to grow and offer a wide range of courses.

Students in the School of Liberal Arts can work toward a Bachelor of Arts degree, offered through 29 majors, and can also seek other areas of study leading to Bachelor of Science, music, fine arts and/or social work degrees. A general curriculum is offered, which includes humanities, fine arts, and the biological, physical and social sciences.

The College of Liberal Arts is composed of 21 departments and 230 professors, as well as numerous instructors and graduate assistants. It is home to over 4,000 undergraduates from all over the U.S. The College is also responsible for coming up with curriculum for the Center of the Study of Southern Culture and the Sarah Isom Center for Women's Studies.

The main functions of the College are "providing a liberal education for its own students and to provide liberal, non-professional courses for students in the professional schools." As stated on the College of Liberal Arts home page, "the faculty seek not only to offer a sound curriculum, but also to encourage the development of graduate study and to stimulate research, which is vital to good teaching and faculty growth."

Various scholarships are awarded annually by the College of Liberal Arts students. They include the Adams Scholarship, offered to juniors and seniors, who are Lafayette County residents, demonstrating financial need and high scholastic achievement. The Davis Scholarship is offered to junior and senior residents of Mississippi, preferably the counties of Alcorn and Chickasaw, who show financial need. The Gamblin Scholarship and the Recklin Scholarship are two other honors awarded to students each year who meet the mandatory scholarship requirements.

Ventress Hall is home to the College of Liberal Arts, which is overseen by newly appointed Dean, Dr. Glenn W. Hopkins, chair and professor of mathematics.

School of Pharmacy

In 1984, Dr. David Gregory graduated from Ole Miss with a B.S. in pharmacy, and he completed a Doctorate in pharmacy via the non-traditional program in 1999. He is presently the manager of pharmacy services for Vanderbilt Children's Hospital, which serves the middle Tennessee community as well as southern Kentucky and northern Alabama. He has practiced pharmacy as a pediatric pharmacist at Vanderbilt University Medical Center since his graduation from Ole Miss.

Dr. Gregory is a member of the American College of Clinical Pharmacy, American Society of Hospital Pharmacy, board member of the Pediatric Pharmacy Advocacy Group, and he is board certified by the American Pharmaceutical Association as a specialist in Pharmacotherapy. Since service to others is one of Dr. Gregory's top priorities, he has participated in several medical and evangelical mission trips, and he coaches youth football and basketball. Even though Dr. Gregory keeps a busy schedule, he makes time for Ole Miss students in the School of Pharmacy by serving as a preceptor.

Ole Miss provided Dr. Gregory more than just a superior education; it provided an opportunity for him to form genuine friendships with colleagues and with the Lord. In his own words Dr. Gregory said, "Ole Miss taught me that people are basically the same from many different walks of life. I grew a tremendous amount both spiritually and physically at that time in my life. Most of all, I made genuine friends that will last a lifetime. The education I received was superior in my field, but the relationships with the individuals which God placed in my path have had the most impact."

The McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College

Samuel Calvin Thigpen is a 1999 McDonnell-Barksdale honor graduate of the University of Mississippi. He received a B.S. in chemistry and math from Ole Miss, and he is currently working towards his B.A. in philosophy and psychology from Oxford University in Oxford, England. Since Thigpen has been at Oxford University, he has enjoyed making friends with people from all across the world, and he runs cross-country for the University and plays darts and basketball for Brasenose College. Besides being an active academic and athletic student, Thigpen plans to be married this summer to Lee Ann Coppenbarger, a 1998 graduate of Ole Miss.

Thigpen was very active during his four years at Ole Miss. Some of his activities include track and field and cross-country, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, M-Club, Undergraduate Council, and a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He was also especially active in student government, with Ole Miss Associated Student Body. Thigpen was an ASB senator from 1994-1996, and he was the 1997-1998 ASB President.

While at Ole Miss, Thigpen gained a better understanding of people. He learned about the difference other people make in lives, challenges of bringing together people from a wide range of backgrounds, and about the importance of a unified voice in making social and educational progress. Thigpen said, "Most importantly, though, I learned that friends, both younger and older, are an invaluable source of wisdom, strength, and encouragement."

The Croft Institute

The Croft Institute for International Studies was established at The University of Mississippi in 1997 by the Joseph C. Brancroft Charitable and Educational Fund. Since beginning operations in July 1998, the Institute has added eight tenured professors to the Ole Miss faculty and has funded several visiting faculty members. In Fall 2000, 112 Ole Miss students were pursuing a major in international studies through the Croft Institute, of whom 29 receive Croft Scholarships of $8,000 per year or other scholarship support from the Institute.

The international studies major requires students to acquire significant proficiency in a language other than English, concentrate on both a world area (East Asia, Europe, or Latin America) and on a set of global issues (ecology and environmental policy, global economics and business, international peace and security, politics and economics in transition, or social and cultural identity), and to study abroad for at least one semester.

Many Croft students intern in international businesses, government offices, or non-governmental organizations for a summer during their studies at the Institute. So far, international studies majors have studied abroad in Argentina, Costa Rica, Croatia, France, Germany, Hungary, Japan, Mexico, Russia, Scotland, and Spain, with more destinations to come in the near future.

The MAMP

The Mississippi Alliance for Minority Participation (MAMP) was created in 1991, funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation and matched by funds from the hosting university. The Alliance serves all eight state universities.

Dr. Charles Alexander is the state-wide IMAGE (Increasing Minority Access to Graduate Education) coordinator and the MAMP site coordinator. The Ole Miss staff includes Jaculine Vinson, program coordinator and Jamie Sturdivant, secretary.

The goal of MAMP is to increase the number of minority (African-American, Native American, Hispanic) students in the areas of science, engineering, and mathematics (SEM). MAMP encourages and assists students in achieving high academic standards, thus preparing them for graduate school.

IMAGE offers varied pathways to progress including Guaranteed 4.0 workshops and seminars, opportunities to attend professional conferences, peer mentoring, tutoring sessions, special seminars, retreats, and social gatherings. Information regarding research opportunities is available to the IMAGE scholars, and they are encouraged to network with students in their fields throughout the state and nation. High academic achievers are awarded scholarships based on the availability of funds.

MAMP programs are viable tools for minority students who are willing to put forth extra effort in their undergraduate studies, not only increasing access to graduate education, but becoming equipped to increase the number of minorities as professionals in the fields of science, engineering, and mathematics.

IMAGE as a minority organization at The University of Mississippi promotes a three-fold mission: to increase the academic standing of minorities underrepresented in the sciences, math, and engineering; to increase the number of the underrepresented minorities matriculating from The University of Mississippi; and to make IMAGE a catalyst for positive things in and around The University of Mississippi community.

Study Abroad

A highlight of many students' college years is the chance to study abroad. The study abroad office is located in the newly refurbished George Street House, next door to the J.D. Williams library and across the street from the Lyceum.

The program has trips that can last anywhere from 15 days to a full academic year. Participants may study in places such as Fiji or Iceland or even closer to home as Mexico or Canada. Students can study a diverse range of topics ranging from English literature to ecology of the coral reef.

The study abroad program is open to students from all majors. Most students decide to participate during their sophomore or junior years. The cost of studying abroad is not much more than studying at Ole Miss.

If interested contact Ms. Susan Oliphant at the George Street House.

The Career Center

Located in Martindale, the Career Center at The University of Mississippi was developed to help students develop career goals, identify potential job opportunities, and learn job search and marketing strategies. Students of differing careers are encouraged to take advantage of the many programs offered through the Career Center. Students searching for permanent jobs and internships are assisted by the recruiting department's campus interview program. Each semester the Career Center holds a Career Day which gives students the unique opportunity to meet with over 200 potential employers on a face-to-face basis. In preparation for Career Day and post graduate employment, the Career Center assists students in developing interviewing strategies, searching for career opportunities, acquiring an internship, and other related topics. The Job Location and Development Program aids students in finding part-time, off-campus jobs. The Career Research Library houses many published resources for career opportunities both in the United States and in the international arena. The Career Counseling Department aids students in career development and assessment.

Academic Support Center

The Academic Support Center at the University of Mississippi includes the development and implementation of academic support services offered to students, placing particular emphasis on academic advising, and including advisement of students without declared majors as well as advisement and support for students in health professions degree programs and pre-professional tracks. The goal of the Academic Support Center is to meet the advising needs of students at The University of Mississippi while helping them decide on a degree program that will ensure a timely graduation and ultimately a successful career path. In addition, Academic Support Center advisors can help students learn about and take advantage of other support units on the UM campus. The Academic Support Center coordinates the academic advising program during summer orientation for all entering freshmen and provides support for faculty advisors, including workshops, printed materials, and an advising web page. The Academic Support Center's web page (www.olemiss.edu/depts/asc/) includes documents for students (e.g. "Self-Help Study Packet," "Choosing a Major," etc.) and links to many useful resources (on such topics as study skills, major and career information, etc.). The Academic Support Center also works with other offices on campus in various aspects of student academic performance and retention.

Annabeth Freeman was elected the 2000 Ole Miss Homecoming Queen. Annabeth is a senior journalism major from Vicksburg, Mississippi. She is a member of Phi Mu Sorority where she serves as president. Annabeth devotes her time to the Leap Frog Tutoring Program, Campus Crusade, and the Yoknapatawpha Arts Council. Annabeth also serves as an Ole Miss Ambassador, SPB Pageants director, ASB member, and is a member of Mortar Board. She is proud to have the opportunity to represent a school such as Ole Miss: "It's an honor to be elected Ole Miss Homecoming Queen and to represent the student body. Ole Miss will always hold a special place in my heart."

The Ole Miss Student M Club is responsible for selecting the University's Homecoming Court. Each active member of the M Club nominates individuals who are deserving and will be good representatives of Ole Miss. After each nominee's name has been submitted, the nominees are invited to a social and are introduced to the M Club members. To be eligible, the candidates must be females who are enrolled full-time students and are not previous Homecoming Court members. The election is done by secret ballot. Active members are allowed to vote for two candidates in each class (a total of eight selections). After the votes are counted, the results are submitted to the Dean of Students. Each student who has been selected is then notified. They are escorted by male members of the M Club during the Homecoming court presentation at halftime of the football game.

John Joseph of Decatur, Alabama, was the only student in Mississippi chosen for a 1999-2000 Truman Scholarship. The Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation, the federal memorial to our thirty-third President, awards merit-based $30,000 scholarships to college students who plan to pursue careers in government or elsewhere in public service, and wish to attend graduate or professional school to help prepare for their careers. Truman Scholars participate in leadership development programs and have special opportunities for internships and employment with the federal government. Joseph majored in Political Science with a minor in Business. Besides being the ASB President, he gained a great deal of fulfillment through Students Envisioning Equality through Diversity, Habitat for Humanity, and working with high school youth at retreats. Joseph is currently interning in Washington, D.C. at the White House with Oval Office Operations. His future plans are to go to law school. John Joseph's message for all Ole Miss students is, "I hope this award reminds students that we can compete with students

As a part of the April 8, 2000 Honors Day, Chancellor Khayat presented this year's recipients a medal for their outstanding academic work. C. Bryant Glisson, one of the 36 recipients of the Taylor Medal, said, "I never even thought to be considered for the Taylor Medal, but I'm pleased to have been chosen as a recipient." This memorial fund provides scholarship medals to students nominated for outstanding scholarship in a particular field combined with superior work in all other subjects. The number awarded annually may not be more than 1 percent of the student body. Each medal has engraved on it the name of the nominating department. A faculty committee recommends those students to be recognized for "meritorious scholarship and deportment" from those nominated by the participating division of the University. The Undergraduate Council and the Academic Council give formal approval for recognition. Eligible students must have a grade-point average of 3.80 or higher, senior standing, and at least 18 hours completed in the school or college in which the nomination originates. Transfer students need to earn 45 semester hours at the University prior to being nominated.

The Goldwater Scholar

John Ma, a pharmaceutical science major, and a student in the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College, is a recipient of one of the coveted and prestigious Goldwater Scholarships. The Goldwater Scholarship and Excellence in Education Foundation was established in 1986 as a tribute to Senator Barry M. Goldwater. For the past 14 years, the program has fostered academic excellence by encouraging and awarding outstanding students in the fields of mathematics, natural sciences, and engineering. Ma won a Goldwater Scholarship by having an excellent academic record and by submitting an essay, "Measuring Depression," which discussed his research while serving as an assistant to Dr. John Piletz, a professor of psychiatry at The University of Mississippi Medical Center. Under Piletz, Ma helped develop a new method to objectively and biologically measure depression in humans. Ma will receive a total of $15,000 over his junior and senior years. After Ma receives his degree in pharmaceutical sciences, he plans to attend medical school and specialize in pharmacology/toxicology and neuro-science, and hopefully acquire a job at the National Institutes of Health. Ma is a member of Lambda Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies, the pharmacy fraternity of Phi Delta Chi, pre-med/health society of Alpha Epsilon Delta, fencing club, a senator in the Honors College, and he volunteers for the Mississippi Veterans' Home. The following are who Ma credits for his success: "I would like to thank my professor and mentor Dr. John Piletz, the Honors College, and my parents Drs. Tangeng and Zhi He Ma."

UM Earns Phi Beta Kappa Chapter

During the late afternoon on October 21, 2000, students stopping for a visit on the Ole Miss home page were informed of the outcome of one of the most important recognitions in the University's history up to date. "Phi Beta Kappa and academic excellence are synonymous, and being awarded this chapter places the University of Mississippi in the company of the most prestigious institutions in the nation," said Dr. Glenn Hopkins, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Professor of Mathematics. The decision for acceptance of a chapter at Ole Miss was made by 300 delegates of the Phi Beta Kappa Council, who voted at the Phi Beta Kappa national convention in Philadelphia, Penn., the weekend of Oct. 20 through Oct. 22. With the "in favor of" vote, Ole Miss became the first public institution in Mississippi to have a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. Hopkins said that the Ole Miss "faculty, students, alumni, friends, and especially our chancellor, made this honor possible." "We are grateful to them for their unflagging support for the College of Liberal Arts and our commitment to a liberal education," Hopkins said. Founded on Dec. 5, 1776 at the College of William and Mary, Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest and most influential honor society in the nation, has 255 chapters in existence nationwide. Liberal Arts graduates in the top 10 percent of their class are eligible to be in the society, and members are expected to be inducted in the spring of 2001, according to campus officials. "Our students richly deserve the opportunity to be members of Phi Beta Kappa," Hopkins said. "Membership is an honor that signals to everyone, including potential employers and graduate schools, that this student's scholarship has met the highest standards." After a year of preparation, the University submitted the application for the acceptance of a Phi Beta Kappa chapter in October 1997. New programs and restorations on campus, like the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College and the newly renovated

J.D. Williams Library, was an impressive factor in the final decision for acceptance. In 1987, Ole Miss applied for a chapter, but was denied acceptance. "To receive a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa means that, in some sense, we have received national recognition for the excellence of our programs and our faculty," Hopkins said. "And that excellence has been proclaimed to the public at large. That is very important, for we want everyone to know that an education at the University of Mississippi is of the highest caliber."

In Their Own Words

"This is without a doubt the most meaningful award that I have been given since I have been a student at Ole Miss, because it does not seek to reward any one particular attribute, effort, or time period. It provides assurance for me that I have touched someone's life during my brief tenure here. Because of Ole Miss, I have begun to truly live."

—Markeeva Morgan

"What makes this so special is that I get to share the recognition with nine other intelligent, hard-working, and dedicated Ole Miss students, with whom I've worked over the past four years. Each of us has tried to give back to this university in many different ways, and it's just an added bonus to be named to the Hall of Fame among such an elite group."

—Melissa Gong

"I must thank God, my father, mother, and brother. They have given me the unconditional love and support I have needed throughout my life. I wish to express my eternal gratitude to all the members of the Ole Miss community. I have learned more than I ever thought possible from their diverse skills, talents, and experiences."

—Tim Hotard

"Being in the Hall of Fame is rewarding, but it is not the real honor. The honor is to work with students and serve Ole Miss. The honor is being able to give back to the university after it has given so much to me. Each and every one of us shares in the real honor of being a part of Ole Miss."

—Trey Jones

"I have always focused on two goals: to receive the best education from Ole Miss and to make the biggest difference I could while going to school here. The most important thing is that the education you receive from Ole Miss will benefit you far more than could any distinction you may receive from the university."

—Scott Pritchett

"I will graduate from The University of Mississippi knowing that others have challenged me, but more importantly, that I have learned to challenge myself to take the extra step needed to do well in a variety of activities in college, both academically and extracurricular. Challenge yourself to be involved, but always remember the true reason for your efforts."

—Jessica Mitchell

"My advice to lower classmen is to take advantage of every opportunity, to meet as many and as diverse people as you can, because every one of them will teach you something that you will take with you for the rest of your life, and to believe in yourself and keep doing what you love and what you believe in no matter what life presents."

—Hart Hazard

"I have loved and visited this university all my life. My grandparents, parents, and older sister have all graduated from Ole Miss. I am just proud that in my years here I was able to give back to this university because it means so much to my family and me."

—Brynna Clark

"Our spirit has been molded by the accomplishments of predecessors and the inspiration of peers. History and culture imprint the understanding of balance between education and experience as we grow beyond the classroom. The university shapes our souls, touched forever by the spirit of Ole Miss."

—Micajah Sturdivant

"Ole Miss will always have a special place in my heart. It was truly my home away from home. This university is filled with special and genuine people who have had a major impact on my life in the past four years. Upon graduation, I can truly say that I will be a successful and proud alumnus of the University of MS."

—Tessa Hughes

The 69th

Parade of Beauties

Eighty-two contestants vied for the title of Most Beautiful in the 69th Parade of Beauties, which was held on the night of January 17, 2001. Many spectators filled Fulton Chapel to see the pageant that is sponsored annually by the Student Programming Board. Blue Ten Harmony provided the entertainment; Eddie and Cheryl Meterjean were the auditors; and Annabeth Freeman and Julie Westbrook were the emcees for the evening. Before the night of the pageant, all the contestants were given a three-minute interview by the four judges. The interviews comprised twenty-five percent of the contestants' scores, and the other seventy-five percent came from the evening gown competition. First the top twenty-five beauties were selected, and then the field was narrowed down even further to the top ten. The top ten beauties for 2001 include Ashlee Douglas, Brenna Davis, Lindsey McGrew, Beth Richards, Memory Nix, Tara Darby, Brittany McDonald, Abby Gregory, Debbie Frazier and Courtney Senter. Rounding out the top twenty-five were Marin Wollerman, Mariah Mavromatis, Marley Hogan, Ashley King, Delores Hoskins, Elizabeth Wright, Calley Dunn,

Lammel, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Joseph Lammel of Memphis. Lammel is a junior fashion merchandising major and member of Phi Mu Sorority where she is a Panhellenic delegate, social chairman, and risk management officer. She is also on the Associated Student Body Campus Affairs Committee and the Student Programming Board Pageant Committee.

Lammel was a top ten finalist in last year's Parade of Beauties, and she was the 1999 Memphis Cotton Carnival Regency Princess. Lammel not only has beauty, but brains as well, because she received special honors in 1999 and 2000. Sara Lammel was very honored to be crowned Most Beautiful, and she stated, "Being in the Parade of Beauties at a school as prestigious as Ole Miss is such a tremendous honor in itself. To win it was absolutely unbelievable. This is such an amazing experience, and I am so thrilled that I was able to take part in this special tradition."

The Daily Mississippian

The University of Mississippi

October 6, 2000 • Vol. 93, No. 98

<http://dm.olemiss.edu>

It's 2 a.m. Three major news stories broke tonight. You have follow-ups to think about for tomorrow's edition. And your media law midterm is tomorrow. Such a stressful scenario is typical for The Daily Mississippian, a completely student-run newspaper at the University of Mississippi.

The DM runs year-long, interrupting publishing only on weekends, during final examinations, and for three weeks in May. The DM has a circulation of 12,500 during the school year and 7,000 during the summer.

The editorial staff is composed of 20 students, who, during the year, balance a full load of classes while working at the newspaper. Editors begin arriving around 4 p.m. to read the first drafts of stories. At 6:30 p.m., the production staff arrives to begin laying out the pages. By 9 p.m., copy editors have arrived. By midnight, the staff gets the paper ready for the printers, who arrive at 4:30 the next morning to run the presses.

It would be impossible for the editorial staff to adhere to its schedule without the hard work and effort of a staff of 30 writers, who work to meet deadlines consistently.

When you're trying to accomplish the mundane task of getting a newspaper out everyday, it's easy to lose sight of the ultimate goals of the paper. The mission of the DM is to serve the university and Oxford community, providing accurate information that allows the community to uplift itself. A community should never be content to remain unchanged for the worse, and a newspaper should try to give the community the tools it needs to improve itself.

The DM advertising staff, winner of numerous national, regional, and state awards for excellence, provides the financial backbone for the newspaper. The ad staff services customers in the Oxford area as they help businesses design advertising that will reach the campus community. Each year the sales staff is selected, trained, and a sales strategy is developed which will enable the staff to reach the local area. This on-the-job training provides invaluable experience for students as they face daily deadlines. Building rapport with their clients and encouraging repeat business builds professionalism. Close cooperation with the editorial and production staff is also vital for building team work which provides a quality newspaper for The University of Mississippi.

Newswatch 12 is not only the home of "Mississippi's best college newscast," but it is also one of the best in the country. Channel 12 produces a live, 30-minute newscast every weeknight. In addition to the Ole Miss campus, Newswatch reaches 5,200 television sets in Oxford, 185 in Abbeville, and another 3,000 in the rest of Lafayette county. Being Oxford's only local television news station carries extra accountability.

Newswatch 12 has undergone a dramatic transformation this past year. We've seen the most extensive physical and structural renovations in the Newswatch's history. Channel 12 has redefined the newscast, and raised the bar for their performance. More local news, better news coverage, and an experienced and qualified staff brings students and residents throughout Lafayette County up-to-the minute news and coverage. No other news medium, including even the Internet, has the immediacy and accessibility that television news has to offer.

Newswatch 12 is completely student produced. Students write, direct, operate, and even anchor the newscast. Ethical, technical, and legal questions are all researched and answered by the students. There are over 40 staff members for Channel 12 and each one plays their part in assembling the newscast. I can't imagine a better staff to bring to you the news of this year. We've succeeded together, we've failed together, we've assessed in our progress, and we've raised the standard for those who take our place. We've run the race as a team.

In 1928 a 26 member band was organized on campus. Today we know the band as the roaring sounds of the 278 member Pride of the South Marching Band. The band serves the university as a center of spirit and support. The Student Alumni Council connects the students of Ole Miss with University alumni. The main focus of SAC is its mentor program, which involves pairing members with alumni who share career interests.

By working together and discussing ideas or problems, the student can be made aware of job opportunities previously unknown to him or her. It also helps the student learn what is required of him or her after graduation.

The SAC also works with the University's recruitment team by visiting high schools around the state, writing letters, and making phone calls to prospective students. SAC actively participates in Homecoming and other activities and programs that arise throughout the academic year.

The National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, founded in 1897, was originated by a group of students who felt the need to recognize scholarship in all disciplines. The society was soon transformed into a national organization by action of a committee composed of the presidents of the University of Maine, The University of Tennessee, and Pennsylvania College.

The University of Mississippi Chapter was chartered in May 1959 as the 77th chapter of Phi Kappa Phi. Today, there are approximately 250 chapters in the 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines.

To qualify for membership, undergraduates must be seniors or second-semester juniors with high standards of scholarship and character. Graduate students and students in professional schools must have distinguished records, placing them among the ablest in their classes. Faculty members must have made significant contributions to their disciplines.

RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION

The Residence Hall Association represents all students living on the University of Mississippi campus. The primary objective is to enhance life within the halls. Each hall elects a hall council that, in conjunction with the executive board, make up the RHA general electing body. Hall councils work to develop programming within their halls. The general elective body works to produce campus-wide events such as Fall Fest in October and Spring Break II in the week following spring break. Every year RHA sends delegates to regional and national conferences, SAACURH and NACURH, to interact with other schools and share ideas to bring back to the Ole Miss campus. Aside from the programming responsibilities, RHA also provides suggestions of policy changes to the Department of Housing that better suit the needs of the residents.

BOARD

The Student Programming Board is a student organization composed of four committees - diversity, entertainment, pageants, and special events. The Diversity Committee attempts to promote cultural diversity on the Ole Miss campus through events such as Apollo Night and Village Fun Day. The Entertainment Committee is in charge of concerts on campus, from 3 Doors Down in Tad Smith Coliseum, to Rumble in the Grove, to the Union Unplugged series every Thursday. It is the responsibility of the Pageants committee to hold three pageants annually including Miss Ole Mister, Parade of Beauties, and Miss University. All of the events for homecoming week, Red and Blue Week, and fun single-day events on campus are organized by the Special Events Committee.

Under the leadership of a nine-member board of directors, the SPB is funded by students, run by students, for the benefit of students. It is the job of the SPB to provide quality programs and entertainment for the Ole Miss student body.

Each year, the students participate in a mission trip. Last spring, they joined others from Mississippi colleges and universities on a trip to Saltillo, Mexico.

The backbone of the St. John's Catholic Campus Ministry at Ole Miss is the Catholic Student Association. The CSA is a group of students led by a council. The council and the campus minister work together to plan, promote, and organize the events and activities of the St. John's CCM.

The goal is to help the student balance mind, body, and soul. The CSA helps to achieve this through active liturgy, parish involvement, and fellowship at St. John's. It is a good mixture of fun, work, and spiritual thought.

The society believes that while good scholarships and intellectual development are the chief objectives of college years, the life of the minute is not the only life that a student will have to cope with as a result of their college experiences.

Members of Omicron Delta Kappa are selected in areas of achievement, scholarship, athletics, campus and community service, social and religious activities, campus government, journalism, speech, and the creative and performing arts.

Men's Basketball

FOR THE SECOND TIME IN THE PROGRAM'S HISTORY, THE REBELS ADVANCED TO THE QUARTERFINALS OF THE NATIONAL INVITATION TOURNAMENT.

The 1999-2000 season brought yet another winning record (19-13) for the Ole Miss men's basketball team, posting the program's fourth straight winning season. The Rebels extended their home-court winning streak versus non-conference opponents to thirty-four straight, currently the third longest streak in the nation. The winning record brought Head Coach Rod Barnes to thirty-nine wins in his first two seasons as head coach, giving him the all time record of winning more games than any other head coach in their first two seasons at Ole Miss.

Besides their regular season honors, the men's basketball team recorded a remarkable post season with their fourth consecutive post-season tournament berth with a bid to the 2000 National Invitation Tournament, marking the first time since 1980-83 that Ole Miss has played in four straight post-season tournaments. The Rebels advanced to quarterfinals of the NIT for the second time in the program's history, defeating University of North Carolina-Charlotte in the first round and Southwest Missouri State in the second round before falling to North Carolina State. Sophomore guard Jason Harrison finished the season with Associated Press All-Southeastern Conference third team honors, marking the fourth straight year that at least one Ole Miss player was named to the AP All-SEC squad.

The Rebels shined off the court as well. Redshirt junior center John Engstrom was named to the 1999-2000 SEC Academic Honor Roll. This was the second straight season that Engstrom received the honor. Showing the art of teamwork in the community, junior forward Rahim Lockhart was selected to the SEC Good Works Team. Both on and off the court, the 1999-2000 Rebels made Ole Miss proud.

Dear Diary,

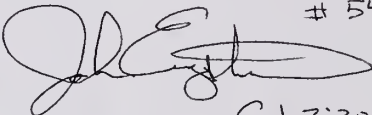

How can I truly measure my success as a Division I athlete? Can it really be measured by wins and losses, or statistics? Is its true test the amount of sacrifice given in blood, sweat, and tears? Many see the value in such things, value that will last only temporarily. I see the value of such an experience being in the development of character and growing closer to the man that God has me to be. Championship rings will tarnish, and sweat will eventually dry, but the experiences I have encountered, the lessons I have learned, and the friends that I have made will last forever.

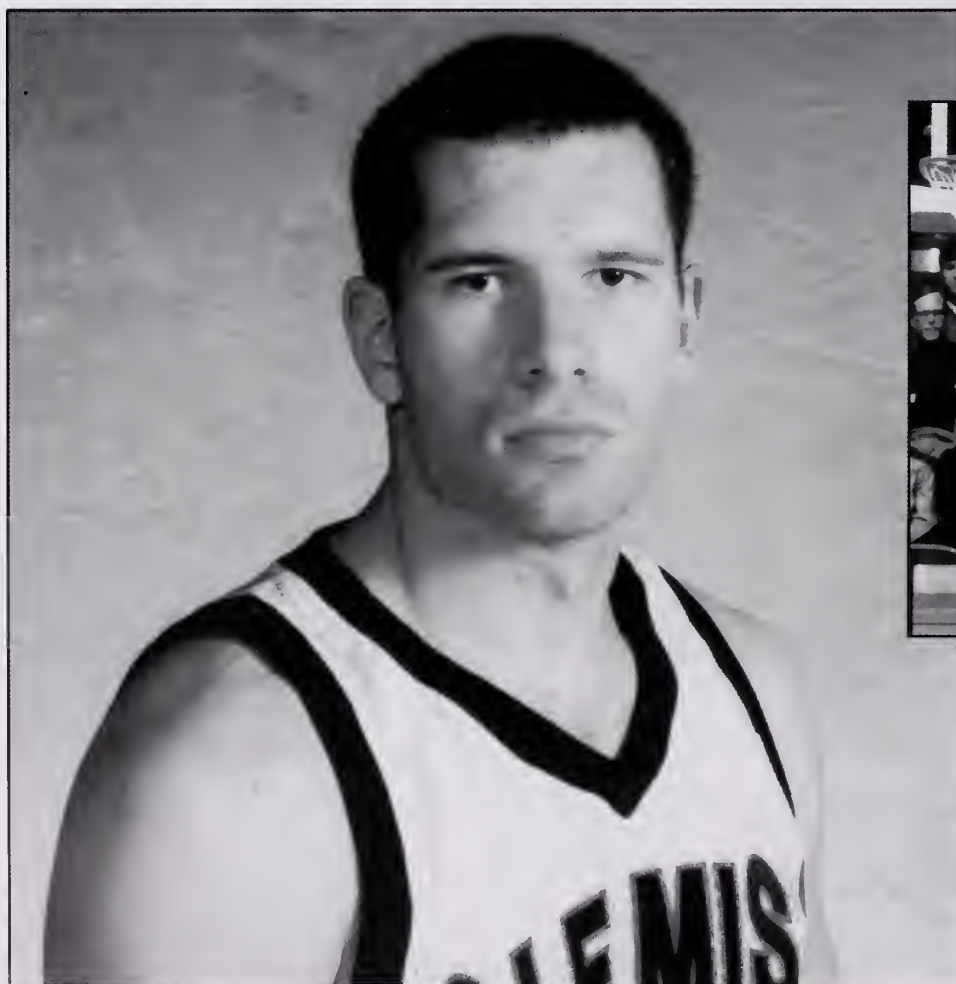

During the process of a college athletic career, you get to experience a lot of things that normal students just do not get the opportunity to be a part of. I have seen victories when no one thought we could win. I have seen losses when no one thought we could lose. There come times of pride to be a part of the team, and there come times of frustration when all you want to do is quit. There is definitely a give and take relationship that goes with being an athlete. And with it comes an experience that can't be written in words, and that is what makes it priceless.

Perhaps the greatest lessons I have learned come from how well life relates to basketball. In life, just as in basketball, there are times when it seems everything is going wrong. And it is during those times you can't quit, but you have to push through. Throughout my life I have grown fond of the statement, "tough times don't last, tough people do," and I have found that statement to be true. You never know what changes lie just out of sight, and it takes faith to push past the tough times in order to take hold of what lies ahead. Basketball has helped me to see such things, and I look forward to what it teaches me in the future.

I have learned so much during my years here, and everything, the good and the bad, I hold dear. But by far the most special aspect of my school has been to see God work in the hearts of people. I have seen how God can take a hard-headed punk kid, mold him into a man of God, and then blossom a tremendous friendship. The desire of my heart is to give glory to God that He may be known, and I have found nothing more special than to see God move in the lives of my teammates and friends.

I am grateful for many things, things that I have been given and blessed with. I am thankful for lessons of life and friendships that transcend race and background. I am thankful to a University where not only knowledge is taught, but where people have invested their lives in me. And I am thankful to a God and testify to the difference that Jesus Christ has made in my life by giving me hope, so that I may give my all in a class, on a court, or most importantly, in life.

Dear Diary,

It's 11:00 pm on Monday night, as my roommate and I put up our books in order to get at least five hours of sleep. Practice in the morning was to be at 5:30 am. We were both in treatment, so we had to be there at 4:30. Several days before, we had just finished our preseason workouts. This was supposed to be our much anticipated first week of practice. For some reason we were told we were to be glad preseason was over and practice was beginning. Not us!! Why would anyone be happy about being up playing basketball at 5:30 in the morning? We had just barely made it through preseason conditioning; now we were practicing 3 hours a day, had weights after practice, taking 17 hours of class, and going to study hall 8 hours a week. We had to either give up sleeping or eating!! We both agreed it would have to be food, because we were dead tired everyday. To make things worse, we hadn't even played a game yet. Being freshmen, my roommate Angela Davidson and I were not adjusting well from high school to college. We often questioned ourselves that year about what we were doing here at Ole Miss, and whether this stressful lifestyle was actually for us. We used to ask ourselves, "Why are we not just regular students? How much more fun and time would we have if we didn't play basketball?" There was really no need to discuss these scenarios since our season had already started and the pressure for us to perform was getting more intense. Neither of us had played well up to this point, and in December we had Oklahoma at home as a non-conference opponent. I was finally having a good game, as I had hit four of five threes and hit a couple of short jumpers. I hadn't turned the ball over but once, and I had dished out six assists. However, we were still tied at 68 with 5.6 seconds left in regulation. While it was our ball, we called a time-out in order to draw up a play to travel the length of the floor. I decided as we left the huddle that if I got the ball I was going all the way. Vollrath, took the ball out and handed it to me. I pushed the ball up the length of the court, crossed over their 6-foot-tall point guard, and hit a left hand lay-up on the buzzer to win the game. I didn't even celebrate. I just watched in astonishment as my teammates ran off the bench to congratulate me. I saw the excitement in their eyes as they hugged and grabbed. I didn't even move. I just stood there because at that moment I realized why I worked so hard in conditioning, why I practice so hard at 5:30 in the morning, and why I had sacrificed a normal college life, and it became clear that it wasn't about me or for me. It was for my 14 teammates that deserved nothing less from me than my very best. I would do anything for them, and it was clear that I wasn't really missing out on anything after all.

Women's Basketball

THE 1999-2000 LADY REBELS' BASKETBALL TEAM FINISHED THE SEASON AFTER BREAKING FOUR RECORDS.

The 1999-2000 women's basketball team finished the season after breaking four records. The Lady Rebels set the single season record for three-pointers with 203 and led the Southeastern Conference in three-pointers made per game with an average of 7.25. In addition, the Lady Rebels set an impressive school record for three-pointers in a game by two teams with 31. The women's basketball team also claimed the win at the Montana State Gran Tree Classic. Frankie Boyd was named the Gran Tree Classic Tournament Most Valuable Player and Becky Myatt joined her on the Gran Tree Classic and Hilton Garden Inn Classic All-Tournament teams.

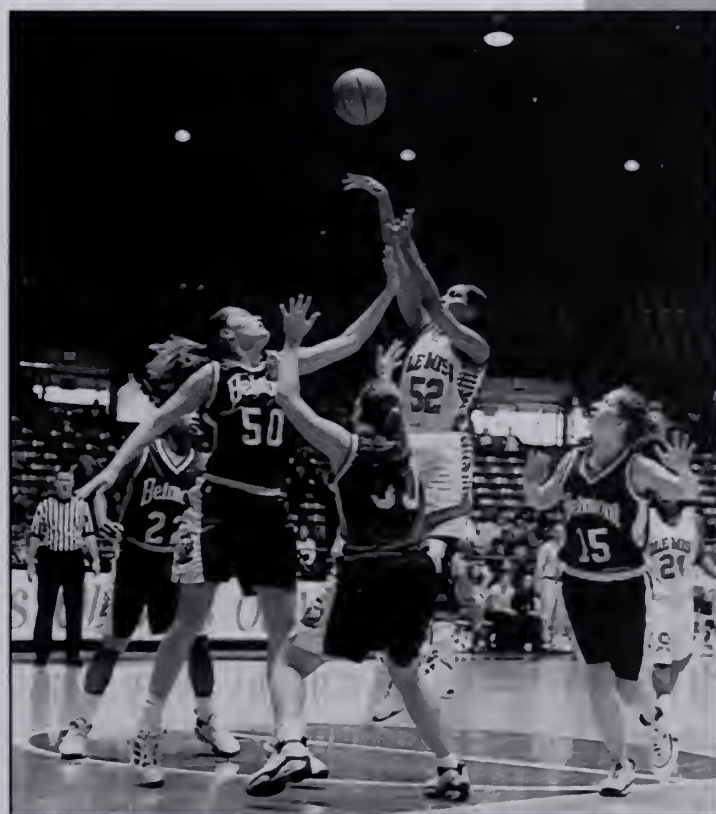

Lady Rebel Becky Myatt produced a number of high individual achievements. She scored her 800th career point and with 843 total career points, needs only 157 to become the 19th Lady Rebel to score 1,000 points in a career. She also moved into second place on the career three-point chart and is only 26 three-pointers short of becoming the all-time leader.

In addition to their basketball honors, the Lady Rebels ranked high in academic and community service status. Six players--Tanya Bolden, Takela Corbitt, Chandra Dorsey, Ta Shondrea Moton, Stephanie Murphy, and Becky Myatt--were named to the SEC Academic Honor Roll, and Tanya Bolden joined the ranks of the SEC Good Works Team. The 1999-2000 Lady Rebels shined brightly both on and off the court.

CLAIMING THE MAYOR'S TROPHY FOR THE SECOND YEAR IN A ROW, THE 2000 SEASON LAID CLAIM TO MANY VICTORIES.

The Rebels opened the 2000 season to Nicholls State. This first home game win was the Rebels' 19th straight season and home-opening win. The last time Ole Miss lost a season or home-opener was to Livingston (8-6) in 1981. The 8-0 shutout was the Rebels' first season-opening shutout since blanking Tennessee-Martin (5-0) to start the 1995 season. The Rebels pushed through the beginning of their season with many wins.

The season only got better from there. Next they had the SEC opener in Gainesville, FL. Chad Hill hit his second home run of the year for the Rebels with a solo shot in the fifth to cut the Florida lead to 4-1. Jude Voltz added a two-run shot in the ninth, his fifth of the year, for the 13-3 final score. The Rebels took the series win at Florida. They went on to play the Mayor's Trophy Tournament in Jackson, MS against the Mississippi State Bulldogs. With the win, Ole Miss (16-11) claimed the Mayor's Trophy for the second straight year, marking the first time the Rebels have done so since the annual game started in 1980. Following the Mayor's Trophy win, the Rebels went on alternating wins and losses. The Rebels' season came to a close with the Rebels being 30-25 overall and 12-17 in the SEC.

A school record of nine members of the 2000 Ole Miss baseball team were named to the SEC Academic Honor Roll. Those named were: Clint Farrar, Ronnie Goodwin, Nathan Lyons, Jude Voltz, Joey Cramblitt, Ryan Davis, Jon Dickens, Ben Edwards, and Bailey Patridge. For the second time in three years, Ole Miss finished a half-game out of the final spot to the SEC Tournament. Kentucky took the eighth and final spot to the conference tournament. Senior first baseman Jude Voltz was named the team's MVP at Ole Miss' season-ending banquet. With the success of the Rebels' on and off the field, the future of the Rebels looks promising.

Dear Diary

The most exciting moment in my career thus far at Ole Miss was during my freshman year against Florida. It was a Saturday night game that started out pretty normal. It was a close game with several lead changes early. Both team's pitchers were throwing well, and the hitters were struggling. I was holding down the bench this game, because I was in a pretty legitimate slump. I didn't expect to even have a chance to play, but my opportunity presented itself in the bottom of the 11th inning. The bases were loaded with one out. They brought in their closer who was throwing "bb's", and I had just gotten finished thinking, "I'm glad I don't have to hit off of this guy," when Coach yells, "Burney, get a bat; you're up." My stomach dropped and the adrenaline started to flow. I walked to the plate, worked the count to 3-2, and then hit a line drive down the right field line to score the winning run. I was extremely relieved and excited.

This moment is one that I will always remember because it came at a time when I was struggling, and there is nothing sweeter than breaking out of a slump.

Dear Diary,

Coming to Ole Miss was a dream come true. All my years of hard work had finally paid off. I am a Division 1 athlete, at a top school, and in one of the toughest conferences in the nation.

After a few months of practicing and playing on the team, I realized that this experience was more than the actual game itself. It is about the true definition of team work. In a short period of time you have to come together with a group of people you have never met. We learn to trust each other by hard work for that one common goal. But even more important than all of that is the life long friendships and memories that will forever be sketched in our minds.

Who could ever forget: karaoke in the bus, the biker with blue hair in San Francisco, the come back win against Florida State, Coach showing us the proper way to kick dirt on an umpire, our first team party, our cardboard table in the Grove, people getting sick on airplane rides, running through the airport terminal, our dance parties in the team room for pregame, the whole team in treatment, monkey girl, the umpire going to the bathroom in the middle of the inning, the win over Southern Miss, and last but not least, who could forget all of our hard work?

To the team of 1999/2000 I hope those memories will never fade. To the team of 2000/2001 I hope we find new memories to sketch in our hearts.

"I THINK IT'S IMPORTANT THAT WE JUST GO OUT AND PLAY THE GAME. WE DON'T NEED TO WORRY ABOUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF WINNING AND LOSING,"

—COACH CANDI LETTS

The softball team started the 2000 season in Arlington, Texas at the Isuzu Motors Invitational, with one of the hardest schedules in the SEC. After hosting an invitational in Oxford on Feb 19-20, the team did not play another game at home until March 31st. Luckily the Lady Rebels came out of their winless streak with four wins during their invitational in Oxford. After playing twenty-two home games last season, a majority of the games were on the road this season.

The Lady Rebels found themselves one spot out of the SEC Tournament. Trailing Auburn by a half a game, they needed to win three of the four games to advance to the SEC tournament. The Lady Rebels were 8-18 going into the Tournament. Ole Miss softball had a difficult time scoring runs this season. Only eleven times have they scored five or more runs this season, with only three times in the last 30 games. The Lady Rebels closed out their season to the Arkansas Razorbacks in a pair of double-headers. Leading the team with a .286 batting average, Amanda Lehotak started every game this season, having her first career homerun against Nicholls State.

Head Coach Candi Letts claimed that "It is not important for the team to worry with the wins or losses, but that the seven seniors on the team finish well and be remembered for their accomplishments." The team had an adequate performance offensively, with Mandy Shklar, senior short stop, having a hot bat for the team. The Lady Rebels ended the season overall with 21 wins and 42 losses. In the SEC, they finished 8-22.

DOMINATING THE SEC, THE REBELS FINISHED THE SEASON WITH A 19-6 RECORD AND WERE RANKED 14TH IN THE NATION

The 2000 Ole Miss Men's Tennis Team did an excellent job this year finishing their winning season ranked 14th in the nation with a 19-6 record. The Rebels dominated the SEC by defeating Tennessee, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia, Arkansas, and Mississippi State. Their 10-3 record in the SEC was good enough to finish third in the nation's top conference (SEC). Alex Hartman and James Shortall were named All-SEC.

The Rebels also went on to play in the NCAA Championships where they defeated Virginia Tech but lost to Virginia Commonwealth. James Shortall, Alex Hartman, and Vikrant Chadha participated in the NCAA Individual Championships, and Shortall and Chadha reached the NCAA Doubles Championship Final Four. Alex Hartman was named the ITA Region III Player to Watch.

Not only do the Rebels dominate on the court, but they also do extremely well in academics. The Men's Tennis Team was named an ITA All-Academic Team in 2000. This award is the highest scholastic honor for a team, and it is based on the team's overall GPA. James Shortall, Vikrant Chadha, and David Blackburn earned Academic All-America honors. Martin Selin, Kristofer Stahlberg, David Blackburn, and James Shortall were named to the SEC Academic Honor Roll.

Dear Diary,

When I finished high school in Sweden, I had to make one of the biggest decisions in my life; to continue studying at a university in Sweden, try the Pro Tour in tennis, or come to America where I could combine full-time tennis with a high-level education. I have definitely not regretted my decision.

Playing for Ole Miss has been one of the greatest experiences of my life. I had never before been part of a team, and the team spirit that comes with it is unbelievable. I had always seen tennis as an individual sport, but now after being a member of the Ole Miss tennis team for over a year, my view of the game is completely different. As a team you practice and compete together, and you especially help each other both on and off the court. As a team we travel and have fun together, and the members of the team become your best friends. It's like your own little "fraternity" but much closer.

The greatest moment that I have had so far was during the spring of 2000 when we played Mississippi State in the SEC tournament in Starkville. I had never seen anything like it before! All of a sudden more than a thousand screaming Bulldog fans turned into warriors. They were stomping in the stands and applauding even if you hit a double fault. (It is like an unwritten rule, in tennis you do not applaud when someone hits a double fault.) My doubles partner and I played the final doubles match to determine the winner of the doubles point. It was in the tie-breaker for the match when I missed my first serve, and all of a sudden the Bulldog fans were going crazy, screaming and shouting: "He is going to choke! He will never make it!" We ended up winning the doubles and taking home the whole match. We left Starkville that day after beating the Bulldogs for the third time that season. The feeling that the team shared was great.

I really like Ole Miss because of the kindness among people. It is like a big family, and even though the students here treat each other with great respect, there is still this "Wassup, brother" attitude. When I came to Oxford to start school, because of my small experiences with the American culture, I was expecting to see skyscrapers, yellow cabs, and people running around the street without even noticing me. This could be because the only place in America I ever went to before was New York. I was so wrong in thinking this! Oxford has shown me another side of America. It has shown me kindness, a down to earth attitude, and a love for varsity sports on campus. And by the way, there is only one cab in Oxford.

Dear Diary,

Standing in the locker room, eyes fixed on the strings of my racket, I hear my teammates talking to each other. It was another game for them, nothing special. Slowly and gradually, their words became whispers and soon, I couldn't hear them anymore. My mind was entirely turned toward the upcoming game. It would be my baptism of fire, my first match for the Lady Rebels. As I thought about it, I couldn't help but be taken over by the nervous anxiety of how important this game was. I had to make a good start for the season; it was necessary. "You've done that a thousand times before," I kept telling myself, trying to calm down; but the fact that I would now play for a team changed everything. This would be different from my previous tennis experiences.

As I walked out onto the court for the tennis presentation, I thought about what one friend had told me: "Just hit the four first balls into the fence. You'll feel better." Even though I knew I wouldn't do it, having that in mind helped me relax. My opponent won the toss. She'll receive first; in my mind, it would be my first chance to break her serve. The two first games were tight. The tension still remained all over me, and my hand was shaking as I held my racket. Then, I heard my teammates cheering. Not that they hadn't done it before, I just couldn't hear them. It was the signal, the click. From this point, I felt free and played much better, out-distancing my opponent game after game. I would cheer for my friends who were playing, as they would cheer for me. My confidence built up, and soon (sooner than I expected), the game was over. I had won my first match as a Lady Rebel. It felt good. I walked to my "girls" to enjoy it with them, and supported those who were still playing. Many emotions were mixing up in my mind. All were so good. Winning for others is a great feeling. Few hours later, we had won. Although I enjoy every single win, this one had a particular meaning. It was my first as a member of this team. From this, I understood what "team spirit" meant, and what it was to be part of a team. We were a group of people from different countries, who decided to be part of a team, and to form a family, helping and supporting each other as much as we could.

In only one match, each of us showed how much we could bring to the team, and vice versa. We proved to each other how much we could accomplish if we come together as one, and this is the first step on the way to success.

IN ADDITION TO A WINNING SEASON WITH A 16-8 RECORD, THE LADY REBELS FINISHED AMONG THE TOP FOUR IN THE SEC FOR THE 14TH TIME.

The 2000 Ole Miss Women's Tennis Team continued their consistency of excellence by finishing the year ranked 18th in the nation. Besides having a winning season with a 16-8 record, the Lady Rebels finished among the top four in the SEC for the 14th time, and they earned their fourth consecutive trip to the NCAA Championships. Ivona Mihailova, Celeste Frey, Mira Radu, and Julie DeRoo qualified for the NCAA Individual Championships. The Lady Rebels also performed well, defeating eight SEC schools during the season, and they ended the season with an 8-4 record in the SEC. Mariana Eberle was named to the All-SEC first team in singles, and Ivona Mihailova was named to the All-SEC second team in singles.

Not only can the Lady Rebels dominate on the court, but they also do extremely well in academics. For the fourth consecutive year the Ole Miss Women's Tennis Team was named an ITA All-Academic Team. Ivona and Irena Mihailova were named Academic All-Americans. Ivona Mihailova, Irena Mihailova, Camilla Gould, Marianna Eberle, and Celeste Frey were all named to the SEC Academic Honor Roll. Ivona Mihailova was a finalist for the H. Boyd McWhorter SEC Postgraduate Scholarship, and she received a $5,000 scholarship for being the top female student-athlete at Ole Miss. Ivona Mihailova received the ITA Arthur Ashe Jr. Leadership and Sportsmanship Award.

Men's Golf

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF THEIR FIVE RETURNING SENIORS, THE MEN'S GOLF TEAM CLIMBED RANKS TO BECOME SIXTH IN THE SEC CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The 1999-2000 Rebel Golf team had a strong season. Returning seniors Jon Bartlett, Robert Dreyfus, Chris Malloy, Buck Purselley, and Danny Sanford brought leadership and strength to the team.

Overall, the season's highest finish for the Rebels took place at the Collegiate Golf Classic, in which they finished second place. Also, the Rebels shot an 845 at the 2000 Gator Invitational. This was quite a game, ranking in as the fourth lowest tournament score in school history. They finished the season coming in seventh in the District 3 South rankings. These polls are established through the votes of the NCAA committee.

The Ole Miss Rebel Golf team also placed an impressive number of seven student athletes on the 2000 Southeastern Conference Academic Honor Roll; this number is, overall, the highest in the conference. Phil Caravia, Troy Muller, Allen Chaney, Tommy Clement, Robert Dreyfus, Andrew Medley, and Brendan Fisher were the individuals that represented the Rebels on the Honor Roll.

Looking at the individual players, Senior Jon Bartlett led the Rebels this year with a stroke average of 72.19. Furthermore, this average earned Bartlett the ranking of seventh in the Southeastern Conference. He also placed within the top twenty in the last eight tournaments. Overall, the team finished sixth in the Southeastern Conference Championships. Bartlett was the team's highest finisher in sixth place.

Dear Diary

Being a golfer has its ups and downs. As a member of the Ole Miss golf team, I have gained a great deal of experience that will help me in the long run. From the moment I came to visit this campus I knew that this was the place for me.

The times that I have had here were different to say the least. When I came here I saw the team that I was a part of. We were mediocre at best. We did not have any sort of guidance or leadership in anything we did. We would go to tournaments and finish in the top ten and be happy that we did not finish last. I remember Phil Caravia and I going to the golf course every day wondering if this would ever get better, since we were the only ones that would ever really go out to the course for any given length of time. However, as time passed, I started to see some changes in the program.

These changes were so strange for me because we started to become a team that everyone was noticing. We were finishing in the top 5 in tournaments now and starting to open people's eyes that our golf team could play. We began to receive some guidance from several of the players and some of the seniors were beginning to take some sort of a leadership role. Leadership and harmony amongst any team has always been a huge value in my life. When I look to see if anything I do is successful, I always look to see how leadership affected what happened for the good or the bad. A good team needs to have leadership skills and a certain kind of peace amongst the team members. Harmony for a team should be the driving fuel to succeed. If everyone on a team has friction with one another, and especially the coach, then you will not perform as well as you should.

As my years have gone by at Ole Miss, I have seen a big change in the two words leadership and harmony. We used to have no leadership on our team and now we have a great deal of guidance and enthusiasm from the players. All of the team members get along very well and do their best to help each other out. We are starting to play as a team. It feels good when you are part of a team instead of an individual among a group claiming to be a team. I have matured a lot in the time that I have been here and my golf game has improved tremendously. When I was younger, I would often go to golf tournaments and try to play my best. I was a decent golfer and had only that to strive from. As I became a junior and now a senior, I have started to become a true golfer by filling in some of the gaps that I have had in my game my whole life. I had my first collegiate win in Tampa, FL in October and it felt incredible to be able to accomplish something of that magnitude. That was one of my goals this year, and now I know that I have surpassed this goal, but I also know that I have to keep striving for excellence.

Dear Diary,

When I first arrived at Ole Miss my freshmen year, I did not know how much time and effort would go into playing golf. I did not know about the qualifying rounds, countless hours of practice, and playing tournaments during Spring Break. I realized that playing golf for Ole Miss would not only make me a better golfer, but it would also teach me about myself.

I was amazed to discover that I possessed the discipline to practice on my weekends off and to spend hours a night trying to catch up on the work I missed, because we had gone from Wednesday to Sunday for a tournament.

All the practice and playing has been well worth it though. When I am playing in a tournament and I know my teammates are counting on me, I never let that thought leave my head. That is what gets me through all the tough times. We don't always play in sunny weather. In fact, our rainsuits are used more than any uniform. So when it's 45 degrees and the rain is coming down hard, you can't give up because there are four other girls out there fighting for you.

My career at Ole Miss is almost over, but I will remember many things, with the most important being my team. And as I walk up to the last hole and I see my teammates, coaches, and family watching me, knowing I have given nothing less than my best, it is and will always be the best feeling in the world.

THE LADY REBELS ENDED THE SEASON WITH THREE TOP-FIVE FINISHES, AND THE TEAM WAS PLACED IN THE TOP-TEN FIVE TIMES.

The Lady Rebels had a rebuilding year as a team, but this was overcome by the individual accomplishments of several team members during their 1999-2000 season.

The team finished eleventh at the Southeastern Conference Championships. The Lady Rebel's highest finisher, Robyn Rinaldo came in at twelfth place. Overall, the team's best showing was at the Auburn Tiger--Derby Invitational. Here, the Lady Rebel's pulled in at fifth place and shot a 919.

At the Palmetto Intercollegiate they shot a 909, which was the third lowest score in team history. At the Cleveland Classic, the team went on to shoot a 958.

Marci Kornegay earned the teams' highest individual finish when she came in as a second place tie while playing at the Louisiana State University--Cleveland Classic. Robyn Rinaldo tied the fourth lowest individual score in school history with a 221 shot at the Palmetto Intercollegiate. Her final round of 69 was a career low and tied the third lowest round ever by a Lady Rebel.

The Lady Rebels ended the season by posting three top-five finishes and the team was placed in the top-ten five times.

Record breaking, qualifying, and successful. No other words better describe the 2000 Ole Miss Indoor and Outdoor Track and Field teams. Each of the teams brought prestige to the Ole Miss Athletic Department. The men's indoor team placed ninth at the SEC Championship, while the women's indoor team placed eighth in the Championship. The women's indoor team also placed eighteenth at the NCAA Championships, which is an Ole Miss record.

With their numerous impressive performances, individual Ole Miss Track and Field team members showed they had what it takes to win. Three team members, Savante Stringfellow and Teneeshia Jones, for the long jump, and Tisha Parker, for the 100 and 200 meter run, qualified for the Olympic Trials which were held in Sacramento, CA, during the summer.

Stringfellow, Jones and Parker along with Brandy Mack of the outdoor team and James Shelton, Kino Mosley, and Brandy Barnett of the indoor team, qualified for the NCAA Championships. Stringfellow also broke Ralph Spry's seventeen-year-old school long jump record, while Brandy Barnett broke the school high jump record. Stacy Andrews, a discus thrower from Camden, Arkansas, broke the men's weight throw record six times and finished fourth at the SEC Championships.

The list of accomplishments for the 2000 Ole Miss Indoor and Outdoor Track and Field teams can go on and on. As the 2001 team gets set for their season, they are setting their sites on an even more record breaking and successful season.

Dear Diary

This is the day I have been waiting for. This is the day where I will finally accomplish one of my dreams, the dream of most athletes. This was my Olympic moment. I arrived at the warm-up facility at eight in the morning. This was not the moment that I expected when I dreamed about this the night before. It was a rainy, gloomy morning of about 55 degrees. As I began my warm-up, I noticed a lot of other athletes doing whatever they could to avoid getting wet. I saw a Canadian jogging inside, and the French would jog a lap and then run back inside. I just endured it.

Before proceeding with my normal warm-up, I put on my red, white, and blue Nike rain suit and a skull cap with the Swoosh in the front. As they made the first call for the long-jump, I noticed Coach Walker and went to talk to him. He reminded me that this is what we have been working for, and this was my time to shine. This was when my nerves began to set in. I began to really think, hey, I am one of the best athletes in the WORLD. As all the long jumpers were getting their bags checked in, this was when I saw the other United States long jumpers. We said a word of prayer and it was on. After our bags were checked, we were taken to another warm-up area before we went to the final destination. 'Y'all better be ready', 'It's showtime', and a bunch of other jibberish from some countries I have never heard of rang in the warm-up area.

I walked around staring, trying to intimidate the competition with direct eye contact and a gleaming blue Superman t-shirt. I was ready for whatever was going to happen. All the nervousness was gone, and there was nothing else I could do. No more training, no more Joe Walker's world famous talks. It was really showtime. When I stepped into Olympic Stadium in front of 100,000 people, I was surprised that I found my parents in the stands and they held up their flag, smiling from ear to ear. To them I was already a Gold medalist. I was their Olympic hero.

Dear Diary

Sitting in front of the line, with diary in hand, I say one final prayer, hoping that today will be a good day. I look up and glance around the range at my teammates and coach, and smile as I realize how far we have come in such a short period of time. It seems like just yesterday I was picking up a gun for the first time, and now I am shooting for one of the fastest growing programs in the nation. I allow my mind to wander back to dream of Olympics one final time, and take a deep breath. I am ready to be the best today.

With the proper calls from the Range Officer, we are directed onto the line and into position to begin shooting. At the sound of "Commence firing!", I lift my rifle to my shoulder, and begin the long journey toward my goal: today I will beat myself. As I look through the sight at that old familiar bull, I listen to Coach's last words of encouragement again: "You can do it, don't settle for anything less than the best." I align my sights and there it is, the perfect shot. Steady, aim, fire.....Bullseye! Good; again. I lower my rifle, reload and begin the process again. That was only the first match; 39 more and we can call it a day....

The pressure is on; everyone is doing very well, but I have a dream. I will succeed. I will be the best. One last shot. Again I lift my gun to my tired shoulder, and as I lower my hot sweaty cheek down onto the gun, I hear that calm voice of encouragement whispering in my ear, "Don't give up!" I close my eyes for a moment and imagine that perfect shot again. As I open my eyes it is there again; wait, wait, fire.....Bullseye! I win again! I may not have won the match today, but I beat the toughest competitor out there: myself. And I will be content with that until another day when I require the best I have to offer again, when I reach for my dreams. As I leave the line and look up at the coach, I know we have done it again and will take another proud victory back home with us to share with those who love us and support us.

REACHING TO SET NEW SCHOOL RECORDS, THE LADY REBELS FINISHED THEIR BEST EVER IN THE NCAA COLLEGIATE SECTIONAL.

The 1999-2000 Lady Rebel Rifle Team, led by Coach Valerie Boothe, had a very successful fourth season. With a 3-1-1 record in match play, the ladies reached a new school record for highest team air rifle score with a 1459 at the Buckeye Invitational in Columbus, Ohio. On November 21, the team placed sixth at Jacksonville State. Sadly, they fell one point short from setting the new school record for air rifle.

The team also finished their best ever in the NCAA Collegiate Sectional. The girls placed sixth in smallbore rifle, with a score of 4034, and seventh in the sir rifle, with a score of 1409.

Along with these team accomplishments the Lady Rebel Rifle team also had numerous individual standouts. Team Captain Jessica Crockett, a senior from Brown Deer, Wisconsin, scored 548 in her final match and won her first career match against Centenary at home. Maranda Stockton placed second in the final competition, while Samantha Bell finished fourth and Jennifer Curry finished sixth.

With a score of 374.8, Stockton, who is from Livingston, TN, obtained the highest air rifle mark average ever held by a Lady Rebel. She also broke the record for the highest Ole Miss individual high score with a score of 383, which she reached at the Tiger Invitational at Memphis. Stockton entered the 2000 season as a freshman and was one of the top junior shooters in Tennessee.

The Ole Miss men looked to senior Chad Dixon to lead them at the conference championships. Dixon, who was named the SEC Runner of the Week twice this season, has also finished in the top 10 in three of four meets this year, and has led the Rebels to three straight top-five team finishes.

The Lady Rebels Cross-Country team, looked to challenge for the top spot behind sophomore Katy Nailen and freshman Demetria Burks. Nailen and Burks led Ole Miss in each of their meets this season.

To conclude, Chad Dixon led the Rebels to an eighth place team finish at this season's SEC Championships. The senior from West Plains, Missouri finished in 18th place with a time of 26:05.85. Sophomore Matt Carter also had a strong showing for the Rebels as he crossed the finish line in 28th place with a time of 26:40.20. The Lady Rebels struggled at the SEC Championships, coming in 12th place. Sophomore Katy Nailen was the first Ole Miss runner to cross the finish line. Nailen finished in 72nd place with a time of 24:53.89.

Dear Diary,

The finish line is in sight. I'm on the "home-stretch" as I train for the last meet of my Ole Miss cross-country career. This race started four years ago when I stepped onto the track for the first time as a college athlete. My start was slow and weak as I adjusted to a new and higher level of running . . . competing in the Southeastern Conference. As the race progressed, I became stronger and more focused on the goal before me . . . to not only finish the race, but to give it all I've got and then some.

The race has been a long, difficult journey. A journey plagued with illness, injury, and a constant struggle to stay on course. To many of the sideline cross-country runners compete on sheer talent, when in reality it takes so much more. It takes constant dedication and motivation. The memories of this race are endless. All the hard hours of practice, two-a-days, personal goals obtained, meets won and lost, the tears shed, and the pain endured; but most of all, the friendships built over the years.

As I cross the finish line, I'll smile and thank God that I was able to finish the race that few are given the chance to run. And I'll cherish the memories and friendships that have helped mold me into the person I am today.

Dear Diary,

My whole life I have worked for things and tried to achieve goals that were sometimes unattainable. Yet, I have reached some of these goals, and they have kept growing into bigger and better realities. Becoming a cheerleader at Ole Miss was one of the most exciting days of my life, and I wouldn't change it for anything. I have had so much fun and way too many memories to turn back now! I have made so many friends that have always and will always be there for me, and we are lucky to have a great coach who knows the difference between practice and play. The best part about cheerleading though, are the games.

My favorite football memory is going to Auburn, Alabama to play the Tigers. I knew this was a huge game because Tommy Tuberville had left to go to Auburn and we got David Cutcliffe from Tennessee. We played an incredible game; the fans were so loud at times that you couldn't hear the Auburn fans at all. Our team must have been ecstatic over all the energy from the fans. The game went into overtime, and we were all as nervous as can be. Of course we knew which team was better and which team should win, but it was down to the wire. We started a million "Hotty Toddy" cheers, and the crowd screamed at the team in hopes to pick them up and lead them to a victory. Overtime came, and we got the ball first. It was so intense that we almost couldn't watch, but we didn't want to miss a single moment. I remember it so clearly; Cory Peterson dove in the back of the end zone to catch a pass from Romaro Miller. The cheerleaders freaked out, and I didn't know what to do, so I just jumped up and down and screamed in awe of what had just happened. Then Auburn got the ball. Our Ole Miss defense stopped them over and over again to hold them off, and we won. We beat the Auburn Tigers in overtime, and we rushed the field. The greatest part was standing on the Auburn field swaying to the slow version of Dixie after we won; it gave me the chills. That is THE moment from cheerleading that I will never forget.

IN ORDER TO KEEP HIGH SPIRITS AT OLE MISS, THE SCHOOL RECRUITED A SELECT FEW TO PERFORM THIS DUTY.

School spirit is an essential part of the University of Mississippi, not only for the athletes, but the student body as well. In order to keep high spirits at the University, the school recruited a select few to perform this duty.

The varsity squad has fourteen members that were chosen to promote excitement and pride for the Ole Miss athletes. There are seven men and seven women who work together as our cheerleaders. The varsity team is supported in their work by the fourteen member junior varsity team. The junior varsity cheerleaders for 2000-2001 are as follows: Martha Christopher, Summer Clements, Ben Collins, Steven Fayed, Alecia Massey, Lauren McGee, Randell Naramore, Lynn Ellen Osborn, Ashley Rogers, Lesley Schualenberg, Cory Sims, Matt Story, Jeff Stricklin, Chris Suber, and Eric Wilson.

Their year begins during the summer when the cheerleaders attend a strenuous training camp. This year they traveled to the University of Alabama for camp where cheers and jumps were perfected through hours of labor and hard work.

Once the school year began, the team went to work early when they hosted a cheer clinic for younger girls in Oxford. In addition to their time spent on the field and on the court, the cheerleaders have quite a few other activities. Every year, the cheerleaders have a tradition of traveling to New Albany, where they ride in the Fourth of July Parade. Colonel Reb also makes his debut, appearing in both the Miss Mississippi Parade and the Christmas Parade in Houston, Mississippi. Furthermore, the cheerleaders are always asked to serve as judges for local high school tryouts and competitions.

The Ole Miss cheerleaders are extremely dedicated to their tasks and to the school. Their antics and support are integral to the morale of the University and its students.

Volleyball

EVEN THOUGH THE TEAM EXPERIENCED SOME HARD TIMES, THE LADY REBELS WERE NOT WITHOUT THEIR STARS.

The 2000 Lady Rebel volleyball squad began its season at the Texas-San Antonio invitational with a pair of wins against Sam Houston and Wyoming, and losses to the host team at Oregon. The team went on to a similar outcome a few days later at the Jayhawk Invitational, once more turning in a pair of wins and losses each.

The squad continued to have problems throughout the season, producing a string of alternating victories and defeats. Despite their considerable effort and a number of close games, the 2000 Lady Rebel volleyball squad's season ended disappointingly with a final loss to Alabama, bringing their regular season record to a close at 15-15, just short of a winning season.

Even though the team experienced some hard times, the Lady Rebs were not without their stars. Senior Kira Zschau finished the season with a team high of 481 kills, 380 digs, and 53 receptions. Just behind her was Junior Jaime Burns with 419 kills, 298 digs, and 37 receptions. Both played integral parts in the squad's wins through the season.

Also contributing to the team was Senior Renata Nowacki. Renata led the team in blocks on the season and contributed generously in many other areas of play as well. Sophomores Sarah Lansden and Erin Newsom turned in impressive performances for the season just behind the team leaders, demonstrating great potential for their remaining seasons at Ole Miss.

The Lady Rebels' veteran players and rising stars end the season with bright hopes for the future, as well as appreciation of the graduating seniors who contributed so much to this year's team.

Dear Diary,

Looking back over my volleyball career, the Georgia game was implemental for our team. It proved so much not only to ourselves, but to all. The Georgia game was our first SEC win of the season. Our team overcame some amazing odds. Ole Miss had not beaten Georgia in over five years. We were down one game and well into the second. Our team was down 1-11. Georgia thought the game was over. A timeout was called. I remember looking at the faces of my teammates, and I knew we were not about to give up. Something changed after that timeout; we started playing for each other by putting our hearts into that game. We came back, won that game, and we beat them in four. That match will never be forgotten because our team proved what we could do.

Choosing Ole Miss was a hard decision for me, being so far away from home, but I have had no regrets. The experience of collegiate volleyball goes beyond a 3 out of 5 game match. It has taught me life changing values mentally, physically, and spiritually. The daily practices and meetings are only a small part of our commitment. We gave our all everyday. Some of my best friends are on this team, and we have all put our hearts, minds, and souls into this program, this season, and into each practice and match. My freshman year I came in with three others, and I am finishing with only one. By the end of this season, Renata and I will walk away from four years of practices, matches, good times and bad times, never to play Ole Miss Volleyball again. Our team has shared some powerful wins and some heartbreaking losses. Volleyball has been such a huge part of my life, and I will forever be changed. All the blood, sweat, and tears, as well as the injuries and the mental battles are all worth it to be a part of this team. All these things are incorporated into my life now, making me better. I have had the privilege to be on a team committed far beyond the court, giving more than asked of them. I believe this team has proved we can overcome anything. I can't describe what they have meant to me. I can only thank each person who has helped us. From fellow teammates, to managers, to trainers, to coaches, and not forgetting all who have given us support, "Thank you all!" You have made my four years amazing, and I am truly blessed.

Dear Diary,

Never in a million years did I expect to play soccer at the University of Mississippi. In fact, after my visit here I thought for sure I would not be here. But things happen and coming here to play soccer has been the best decision of my life. Looking back on my four years here, there are a lot of memories that really stand out. For example, as a freshman, our first SEC win over Arkansas; going to the SEC tournament finals my junior year and winning the SEC Western Division. All of these were great experiences, but the thing that I will remember the most about my experience as an athlete here is my teammates and coaches. My teammates are awesome, and I cannot imagine experiencing all these things without them.

It is hard to express to people just how much time we really spend together. We practice every day together, we lift weights together, we spend four-day weekends together, we live together, we have class together, we study together, and we party together. When people spend that much time together, they are no longer friends. They are family.

I was watching the Olympics on television, and I came to a realization. All the athletes that won individual gold medals did not get to share that experience with anyone. No one, not even their families, could know what they were feeling. I am so thankful that when we win or I score a goal, I am surrounded by my best friends and we are able to celebrate together. I know that the friends I have made here will be my friends for life. The memories and the feelings we felt when we accomplished something great will fade, but the memories we made together will stay with me forever.

Soccer

FOLLOWING A COUPLE OF EARLY LOSSES, THE LADY REBS WENT ON TO PRODUCE A RARELY INTERRUPTED STRING OF VICTORIES.

The Lady Rebel Soccer team had yet another outstanding year during the 2000 season. Previously named SEC Western Division Champs for the 1999 season, they had a lot to live up to this year. Following a couple of close losses at the season's start, the Lady Rebs went on to produce a rarely interrupted string of victories.

Staying strong throughout the season, the Lady Rebs hopes of reclaiming their title as Western Division Champions quickly came within reach. In a dramatic confrontation with Mississippi State, they once again secured their place as SEC West Champs in a double overtime tie with their rivals. The Lady Rebs finished the regular season with a record of 13-5-1.

They later went on to participate in the SEC Tournament as the number two seed. Unfortunately, the post-season was over as soon as it began as the team suffered a 2-0 loss to Georgia, bringing their record to a final count of 13-6-1.

Though every member of the soccer team made a significant impact on the season's outcome, a few players deserve special mention. Most notable is senior kicker Jennifer Soileau. Soileau shined throughout the year, leading the Lady Rebels in scores and assists for the season. Named to the 2000 All-SEC first team, she ended her stay at Ole Miss as its all-time leading scorer with 99 career points. Sophomore transfer Kristin Chapman also earned All-SEC honors as she was named second team All-SEC. Fellow sophomores Anna Sanders and Bridget Brooks also turned in impressive scoring records for the year. Senior Regan Scanlon made SEC Player of the Week at mid-season and has remained a solid player for the Rebs throughout her career.

One does not have to look far to find talent in Lady Rebel Soccer. This year we say goodbye to several players who have helped raise the standard for Ole Miss soccer. As a legacy to its seniors, the rising stars of Rebel soccer will carry the team into the new millennium.

The Ole Miss Rebels have once again had another successful season by finishing the year with a 7-4 record. It was the fourth straight winning season for the Rebels, and the 2000 Senior Class leaves Ole Miss as the first class since the 1956 Class to have four straight winning seasons.

The season opened with a 49-20 over the Tulane Green Wave. Ole Miss trailed early, before erupting for 21 points in the third quarter on their way to the win. Deuce McAllister had three touchdowns for the Rebels. Next up for the Rebels was the return of former head coach Tommy Tuberville and his Auburn Tigers. In a much-anticipated contest, the Rebels fell short 35-27 and Tuberville escaped Oxford with a smile on his face. McAllister once again dazzled Rebel fans scoring three touchdowns, including an 87-yard punt return for a score.

Ole Miss's first road game of the season was a success as the Rebels took care of Vanderbilt 12-7 in Nashville. Next up was a Kentucky team with 300-pound quarterback Jared Lorenzen. Although outweighing the whole defense, Lorenzen struggled against the Rebel defense as Ole Miss easily defeated Kentucky 35-17. Ole Miss led 35-3 late in the fourth quarter, before two meaningless touchdowns.

The Rebel offense continued to hit on all cylinders as they pounded Arkansas State 35-10 in Oxford the following week. Ole Miss then traveled to Tuscaloosa for what was marked as one of the biggest games before the season started. History was against the Rebels as Ole Miss had lost 12-straight years to the Tide. The Rebels seemed shell-shocked as Alabama released a season full on frustration, whipping them 45-7.

After a week off to regroup, Ole Miss bounced back with a 43-40 overtime homecoming win over UNLV. The following week the Ole Miss program made school history by winning in Fayetteville, Ark. for the first time ever. The 38-24 win gave the Rebels one of their most impressive wins of the season.

The next two weeks were tough for the Rebels losing to LSU 20-9 at home, and then losing at Georgia 32-14. The Ole Miss offense struggled during the two games only scoring only one offensive touchdown in the two contests.

Ole Miss made up for their lackluster performances against LSU and Georgia with a huge win over rival Mississippi State in the annual Egg Bowl. After trailing 16-0 in the second quarter to the Bulldogs, the Rebel offense came to life, scoring 28 unanswered points to take a 28-16 lead. After Mississippi State battled back to gain a 30-28 lead, Ole Miss seniors took control of the game leading the Rebels to a 45-30 win in the rain. McAllister ran for three touchdowns and passed for one, while quarterback Romaro Miller threw two scores and caught a third.

Although the Rebels did not win the SEC West, Ole Miss still had a successful season. They are the only SEC West School to go to four straight bowl games. With the return of several talented athletes a fifth straight winning season is within grasp. Ole Miss head coach David Cutcliffe has established the Rebels as a constant top 25 national program.

Music City Bowl

NASHVILLE, TN

DECEMBER 28, 2000

The Ole Miss senior class went into the Music City Bowl looking for their fourth consecutive win, but the West Virginia Mountaineers stunned the Rebels 49-38 in front of 47,119 at Adelphia Coliseum in Nashville, TN. The Mountaineers ended a seven game bowl-losing streak and gave coach Don Nehlen a win in his final game. West Virginia came out smoking, building a 35-9 halftime lead and a 49-9 lead midway through the third quarter. But the Rebels did not quit as they scored the game's final 29 points. "I was proud of our team for fighting back and continuing to fight, even when it really got bleak, further into the second half," Ole Miss head coach David Cutcliffe said. "I'm real proud of our seniors that we have. These young men have contributed great numbers to the Ole Miss program, 30 wins in four years, four straight bowl games, and more records than I can count as a class."

In the Mississippi State game, McAllister and Miller ran and passed the ball at will as the two accounted for six touchdowns. Against the Mountaineers, the duo were held in check as McAllister rushed for 22 yards on 13 carries, while Miller completed 16-of-31 passes for 221 yards, no touchdowns, and two interceptions.

West Virginia quarterback Brad Lewis was in total control in the first half as he completed all seven pass attempts for 216 yards and four touchdowns. Lewis, who was named the MVP, completed 11-of-14 passes for 276 yards and five touchdowns. Wide receivers Antonio Brown and Khorri Brown burned the Rebel secondary with two touchdowns apiece. Brown caught three passes for 129 yards while Ivy halted in five receptions for 84 yards. Although Ole Miss out-gained West Virginia 482 to 432 of total offensive yards, the Rebels struggled to get the ball in the end zone in the first half, resulting in three field goals instead of touchdowns. Back up quarterback Eli Manning gave the Rebels a spark off the bench in the fourth quarter with three touchdowns passes, but it was not enough to change the outcome of the game. Freshman wide receiver Chris Collins led the Rebels in receiving with five receptions for 65 yards, and was one of 11 different Rebels to catch a pass in the contest.

Ole Miss fell to 7-5 on the season, while West Virginia improved to 7-5.

Working on the yearbook staff as Distinctions Section Editor for the past two years has been challenging, yet rewarding. I would like to thank all my copy writers: Hays Burchfield, Katy Hillman, and Tamara Gatewood for meeting the copy deadlines I set for them. Their cooperation helped me and the rest of the staff meet our shipping deadlines. The staff at University Communications, Imaging Services, and our photographers also contributed greatly to the Distinctions section. I would like to thank everyone featured in my section for all of their cooperation and patience in scheduling pictures: Col. Reb George Haymans, Miss Ole Miss Laura Payne, the Homcoming Court, Miss University Megan Flowers, Dr. Gilbert, the Class Favorites, Hall of Fame inductees, Who's Who winners, and all other "distinct" people. You are all busy, and I appreciate you making time in your schedules for me. My sincerest thanks goes to our advisor Traci Mitchell who we haven't seen much of this year, but has been with us in spirit. To all our friends and fellow "deer campers" at Taylor Publishing--Ben, Tami, and Toni--your encouragement and guidance has been unbelievable. 6705 rules! Lastly, I would like to thank Karen Smith for taking on the tremendous responsibility of being editor-in-chief and doing such a wonderful job at it.

Mandy Fong
Distinctions Editor 2001

A special thanks to all the photographers and writers for taking the time out of their busy schedules to photograph and write about Ole Miss student life. You did a great job in portraying what it is like being a student here. Also, thanks to the bands and organizations who let us borrow their wonderful pictures to fill our pages. Another special thanks to Stephanie Dukes for her wonderful artwork that decorated the the Student Life pages. Last, but not least, thanks to Ashley Williams for her great ideas and layout for the the Student Life section, and thanks to Karen Smith for being a great editor. Without these people we would not have been able to successfully get our job done.

Stephanie Dukes

As Greek section editor I have learned a lot about time management and depending on others to get your work done on time. A big thanks goes out to all sorority and fraternity presidents who got all materials to me on time. Thank you, Ryan for all the great photographs. Everything turned out fine after all! Beth Rush, you are a great person, well-organized and always willing to help. Thank you for being a great assistant. To all the "deer-campers" from Dallas, don't forget about the 'club'. Ben, you're the best! You are invited back to Oxford anytime. Thanks to Ben and Traci for the encouragement and praise. You both always have a lot of wisdom to shine on a situation. Finally, I would like to thank Karen Smith for being such a dedicated editor. You have been a tremendous help this year, and I thank you for all your time and shared knowledge. I couldn't have done this without you.

Brandy Stewart

Well, here we are at the end of another year and another successful yearbook. I met a lot of new friends and I hope you all are pleased with your pages. It is next to impossible to get through a year without a few snags in communication along the way - for that I apologize. Mainly I want to take this time to thank everyone involved. We had more organizations this year than last year in the book and that meant a lot of juggling of schedules to make time for dropping off contracts, scheduling pictures, and dropping off information to the office. I wish to thank each organization for their cooperation and dedication. This section also would not have been possible without the help of Anna McGahey who helped me make phone calls, proof pages, and remember to attend meetings. Thank-you. I would like to thank Will Blythe, my boyfriend, for listening to me when I had a bad day at the office or couldn't get up enough energy to get off of my couch. Thanks for all the good times. Oh, yes last but not least I would like to thank all of my fellow staff members for their help from time to time. And I think that Karen did a great job getting us all together. Thanks.

Will Blythe

I would like to thank Karen and Traci for giving me this opportunity. Yearbook has been a valuable experience. Thank you, Amy, for letting me be your little helper, as little help as I could be... you've got everything under control. Best of luck for the future! I know you will be successful no matter what you do... but I hope you stay in Oxford! Also, many thanks to all the other section editors and assistants for making it all fun, and keeping me from getting lost. As always, thank you, Jeffrey, for your infinite patience.

Anna K. McGahey

Serving as the People section editor has definitely been a challenging and rewarding experience. I would not have survived, though, if it were not for the people who helped me. To Kelley, for being a wonderful and dedicated assistant. I would not have completed the section without her. To Karen, my editor, who was so patient through everything and made my experience on the yearbook staff so enjoyable. To Kelsi, who helped me with my biggest deadline without any question. To Ryan and Amy, who gave me pictures to use in the section. They were greatly appreciated. I would also like to thank everybody who helped during class pictures and my deadline. You all made my job so much easier, and I wouldn't know what I would do without you. To a wonderful staff, thanks for a great year.

Katie Greer
People Section Editor

Hello Friends,

I would like to give a special thanks to the many people who helped me with my section of the yearbook. I would like to thank each Dean and their secretaries from each school for contributing information. I am so grateful to Chancellor Khayat for his generous support for the yearbook. I would also like to thank MAMP, the Study Abroad program, McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College, the Croft Institute, the Career Center, and the Academic Support Center. Special thanks also goes to Mr. Edward C. Maloney, Mr. Calvin Thigpen, Ms. Tina File Webb, Dr. David Cole, and Ms. Julie Grimes for their efforts in helping to make the "Academic" section better. I would also like to thank Hays Burchfield, Amanda Johnson, and Kathleen Hillman for their copy writing. Special thanks goes to Sarah-Elizabeth Gundlach, Ryan Pierini, Brandy Stewart, Josh Guest, and Denise Williams for the photographs in my section. The biggest thank you of them all goes to the Editor, Karen Smith. Thanks Karen for taking the chance on having a "Freshman" as a section editor.

John Weatherford

Dear Friends,

On the behalf of the Sports section, I would like to say thanks to Sports Information for providing a majority of the pictures in the Sports section, and for your time, patience, and resources. I would also like to thank my copy writers: Hays Burchfield and Peter Ross. Without your articles, the section would not have happened. Many thanks go out to everyone who wrote a sports diary: John Engstrom, Takela Corbitt, Burney Hutchinson, Amanda Lehotak, Alex Hartman, Julie DeRoo, Troy Muller, Teresa Brown, Maranda Stockton, Jennifer Soileau, Angela Westbrook, Savante Stringfellow, Abby Diddle, and Kira Zschau. I would also like to thank everyone on yearbook staff for helping me out my first year on staff. THANK YOU, KAREN!! I appreciate all the help you gave me, and I look forward to being on staff next year. Lastly but not least, I would like to thank my roommate Tricia Oughton who helped me out during times that were tight. Thanks again to everyone.

Sincerely,

Amanda S. Macle

After three years on yearbook staff, I'm a little sorry to see it all end. So it goes though. Of each staff I've worked with, I've probably enjoyed this one the most. There was Ryan the Pirate, and Karen the high commander and lady of much organization. There was John the jokester, Ashley the ever stressed, Amy the delicious cake maker. There was Ben the ever generous patron of yearbook dining and all the others who made this ride so unforgettable. Then there was Traci, the ever faithful and overworked advisor who put up with us for just one more year. It's been such a blessing to work with each and every one of you. Thanks for making my yearbook experience such an awesome one!

How do I begin to thank all the people that looked after me during late nights at Farley, and during deadline weeks when my mad scientist hair was a daily occurrence, and I was constantly forgetting to eat! Foremost, I am nothing without my family; when we faced disaster, I completely realized our amazing strength and our courage to continue this crazy journey of life. Mom, you are my angel in so many ways I could never even begin to explain. You remind me every day of the woman I want to become. And Dad, you are ever present to give me a glimpse of my exact personality and laugh along with my crazy schemes. Abigail--your name could never be anything else and I am the favorite; Ben--please don't turn into a real boy. And to my wonderful friends and sisters at Ole Miss....where would I be without you! Y'all have been there for everything: the mohawk issue, my numerous mental breakdowns, dropping classes (Why would anyone take over 12 by choice?), all the chaos of life--a.k.a. UGA game, shady & toxic people, and the good things like quality boys, presents, cookies, and Oprah. And as always- STIPE FOR PRESIDENT.

Working with the yearbook has been something I've enjoyed doing ever since high school. I wanted to continue that opportunity when I came to Ole Miss, but as a freshman, I wasn't sure how I could get involved. However, as soon as I saw an ad in the DM at the end of my freshman year to be on staff, I responded immediately and became involved as a section editor.

I then set a goal to one day be the editor-in-chief, but that goal somewhat faded once I saw how much time and work it required (a lot more than in high school!). Focusing on my school work has always been my number one priority, and I was afraid that my grades would suffer if I chose to take on such a big responsibility. However, when the time came to select a new editor at the end of my junior year, I felt the Lord leading me to apply for the position. I had to have faith that He would give me the strength, patience, and time to get through it, and He did!

This year has been a wonderful experience, and one that I have not regretted. I want to thank Chancellor Khayat and Thomas Wallace for taking time out of your busy schedules to talk with me, and for your tremendous support. Thanks to Robert Jordan, Kevin Bain, and Joe Ellis at Imaging Services for rescuing me on several occasions! Thanks to everyone in the Public Relations office, Lamar Chance and the rest of the staff at Sports Information, the Daily Mississippian, Peter Cleary, Kristy Lowe, Darcy Colley, Leslie Walker, and Melanie Wadkins. Thank you, Ralph and Traci for your support and encouragement. Thank you to everyone at Taylor Publishing Company, especially Ben and Tami for your time, support, and patience--you are THE BEST!

A big thanks to all of the section editors, assistants, writers, and photographers for your hard work, time, and commitment. You made my job so much easier! Thank you, Summer, for always being there when I needed help! Thank you to all my friends and family, especially my mom and dad, for supporting me and for believing in me- I love you! Thank you, Jeremy, for your love, support, and patience. I could not have made it without you- I LOVE YOU!

And last but not least- thank You, Jesus, for using me and working through me to do Your work. All that I am is Yours.
